BETTY GOW COLLAPSES AT HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Passengers Safe As Liner Hangs On Bahama Reef

Travelers and Crew Members of Ss. Havana Carried By Other Ships to Miami, Fla., and Havana; Only Known Death Was Man Who Succumbed to Apoplexy; Sailor Reported Missing

Efforts to Pull Liner Off Rocks

Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7.—Shipwrecked passengers who went calmly to breakfast before bracing a rough sea in lifeboats told a vivid story to-day of the grounding of the Ward liner Havana on a Bahaman coral reef. The ship struck the reef early Sunday while most of those on board were asleep, but the passengers arriving here to-day on the freighter El Oceano said the impact when the liner grounded was so gentle that many were not awakened.

Another rescue ship, the United Fruit steamer Peten, sped toward Havana with other passengers taken off the Havana. The El Oceano landed here with thirty-eight of the fifty-one passengers on the ship's list and some of the crew, while the Peten carried eleven passengers and thirteen members of the crew.

One passenger, identified as Robert Rittenhouse of Brooklyn, N.Y., died of apoplexy in a lifeboat, the only known fatality. One other passenger was not placed in the incomplete check, and Captain A. W. Peterson of the Havana said a sailor was missing.

SAVED BY SAILOR

The transfer of the passengers to the El Oceano was carried out in heavy seas without mishap, except for the swamping of one lifeboat which was struck by a large wave. A woman and her two children were swept into the water, but were saved by a seaman.

The Havana was southbound to Havana, Cuba, when it ran on the reef.

"It went aground on Manzanilla Shoal about 4.30 Sunday morning, but did not send out an SOS until 7.45 a.m. The first report told of the grounding and asked the coastguard to stand by. The second said the ship was "bounding badly" and asked for immediate help.

A coastguard seaplane, three coastguard boats and four steamships immediately sped to the scene.

Of the crew of 127 men, eighty-three remained on the Havana, which still was stuck fast, but in no immediate danger. Coastguard craft were standing by.

Refunding Plan Will Go Ahead

Port Moody Interest Reduction Scheme to Go to House

Second of the municipal refunding measures to go before the B.C. Legislature at the coming session has now received assent of the bondholders, it was learned at the Department of Municipal Affairs to-day.

It covers the debt of the municipality of Port Moody, amounting to roughly $290,000.

The other municipal conversion scheme to go before the House is that of Prince Rupert, which deals with a debt of approximately $2,000,000, placed on a 4 per cent basis.

The Port Moody plan is more of a debt postponement than an actual refunding.

It involves, first, the postponement of all interest payments for the year 1934-35, a reduction by 50 per cent of interest charges for the ensuing five years and by 33⅓ per cent for the following three years. After eight years the normal interest payments would be resumed.

ADVANCED TWELVE YEARS

Maturity of all outstanding debentures will be advanced twelve years from the present dates of maturity, but from time to time debentures to be selected by lot may be called and paid at par on or after the original maturity date.

Payment of principal and interest will be postponed for four years and all city of Port Moody bonds held in the sinking funds now will be cancelled. Other securities in the sinking funds will be deposited to a reserve account and distributed to the credit of the separate sinking fund accounts of existing debts.

New debentures will be issued in substitution for the present outstanding issues, and until all present debentures are retired no further issues may be made without the written consent of the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

While the Prince Rupert and Port Moody conversion schemes are the only ones which have advanced to the point of readiness for legislation, there are several others in the offing which may not reach that stage in time for the coming session.

Proposal of Mayor McGeer to reduce Vancouver's interest payments by a flat 50 per cent undoubtedly will be followed by requests from other cities, it is believed.

NO COMPULSORY ARMY TRAINING

Sir Maurice Hankey Denies in Glasgow Suggestion Made For Australia

Canadian Press

Glasgow, Jan. 7. — Sir Maurice Hankey, Secretary of the Imperial Defence Committee in London, yesterday denied he had suggested compulsory military training should be introduced again in Australia.

Sir Maurice landed in Glasgow, ending a trip which took him to South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. He has been conducting conventions with the governments of the Dominions on the question of Imperial defence.

Dispatches from Melbourne said Sir Maurice, in a report on the situation in Australia, had advocated resumption of compulsory military training, and proposed a ten-year period of reorganization for the Australian forces.

Minor Clashes As Saar Vote Begins

Absence of Serious Trouble Features First Polling in History-making Plebiscite

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 7.—Voting in the history-making Saar plebiscite, ordered fifteen years ago at Versailles, began to-day as 2,000 public employees cast their ballots in effect for or against Adolf Hitler.

Polls were opened at 8.30 a.m. for the civil workers, most of whom must work next Sunday. They were allowed to vote early because they must work on election day. Then the public will decide whether the territory will return to Germany, unite with France or remain under League of Nations guidance.

Only minor disturbances were reported in yesterday's big windup mass meetings. This was interpreted

BETTER ROADS ARE DISCUSSED

Chamber of Commerce Directors Will Investigate West Coast Project

Construction of the West Coast road, improvement of the eighteen-mile stretch between Campbell River and Merville, and the establishment of a Highway Commission in British Columbia were discussed by directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room to-day.

The directors supported the efforts of the Courtenay-Comox Board of Trade to have the government undertake improvement of the Campbell River-Merville stretch of eighteen miles, and named committees to discuss the feasibility of the West Coast project and the highway commission. James A. Griffith suggested the chamber might interest itself in the West Coast scheme. He pointed out that men in relief camps were idle and being paid $31.70 a month, and suggested they be put to work on this road at fifty cents an hour, working sixty hours a month.

CAUTION GIVEN

J. O. Cameron, George McGregor and R. H. B. Ker spoke in favor of the scheme but Reeve William Crouch warned that payment of wages would not be the only cost incurred. The reason why these types of undertakings had not been started by provincial and municipal governments was because of the additional costs entailed in purchasing materials and equipment, he said.

It was decided that a committee should be named to find out what had been done in regard to this project and what was contemplated for the future.

The suggestion for the highway commission came from the Penticton Board of Trade and was referred to a committee for report. The resolution suggested a commission consisting of three men paid sufficiently large salaries to enable them to devote their whole time to the work. It was felt the board might consist of a member recommended by the government, a civil engineer and an economist. All appointments should be made by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, the resolution stipulated.

SECRECY SHROUDS ELECTRIC PLANE SEEN AT TORONTO

Powered With New Type Battery Capable of 500 Working Hours at One Eighty-cent Charge; New Machine Watched With Interest

Canadian Press

The invention, made by Edgar Ward, forty-six-year-old Toronto man, centres around an entirely new type of battery which, it was reported, will operate a vehicle for 500 working hours on one charging at a cost of eighty cents.

It was first used a few weeks ago. Carrying the inventor, two pilots and a business associate, the plane hummed to an almost noiseless landing in a field near Toronto and took off several hours later for Detroit with the same passengers.

An experimental flight from Detroit to Vancouver was planned for the plane recently, but was abandoned owing to atmospheric conditions.

Pope Talks With French Minister

M. Laval Is First Minister of Republic to Be Received at Vatican

Canadian Press from Havas

Vatican City, Jan. 7.—A fifty-minute conversation between Pope Pius XI and French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval to-day ended nearly thirty-two years of cool relations between the Holy See and the Third Republic.

Hailed at the Vatican with trumpet blasts and ushered into the papal presence with medieval pomp and ceremony, M. Laval presented the Pontiff some valuable books. M. Laval was the first French Foreign Minister ever to be received by a Pope.

Mlle. Jose Laval, the Foreign Minister's daughter, was later ushered in and introduced to His Holiness by her father.

The Pope bestowed on M. Laval the decoration of the Grand Cross of Pius XI, one of the highest honors the Holy See can confer.

The three volumes presented by M. Laval to the Supreme Pontiff were very ancient and of great value. The first was in Latin and entitled "The Annals of Paris Up to the Reign of Hughes Capet." The second consisted exclusively of engravings and bore the title: "The Delights of Paris—A Collection of Views of the Principal Buildings." A treatise on the coronation of Louis XV was the third.

A few minutes before the Frenchmen drew up before Premier Mussolini's office building, Foreign Under-Secretary Fulvio Suvich arrived. Hundreds of people gathered in the Venezia Square while the historic signing occurred, but an imposing display of police kept them at a careful distance.

THREATS SENT TO LINDBERGHS

Letters Hinting Harm to Family Received Since Hauptman Trial Opened

Associated Press

Flemington, N.J., Jan. 7.—Letters threatening harm to members of the Lindbergh family and Anthony M. Hauck Jr., Hunterdon County prosecutor, have been received since the opening of the Hauptmann kidnapping trial. This was disclosed yesterday by New Jersey authorities.

Hauck, who was inclined to discount the seriousness of the threats, said one came from Utica, N.Y., threatening his life in the event Bruno Richard Hauptmann was convicted for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Guards have been stationed at the Morrow home in Englewood for months, to protect Jon, the second son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Girl Who Was Nurse To Lindbergh Baby Is Closely Questioned By Defence

Miss Gow Admits She Told "Red" Johnson, Sailor Friend, of Lindbergh Family's Movements; Denies She Herself Dropped Baby's Thumbguard Where It Was Found 100 Yards From House

Defence Fights Ladder Evidence

Associated Press

Flemington, N.J., Jan. 7 — The nursemaid, Betty Gow, collapsed to-day after the strain of nearly three hours as a witness in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping and murder of Baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh.

She had just testified:

That the undershirt found on the body of the slain baby was made by her and put on it the last night she saw it alive.

That a thumbguard worn by the baby was found by her a month after the kidnapping 100 yards from the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N.J.

That she told "Red" Johnson, her sailor friend, and probably others that the Lindberghs were not returning to the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, the Monday which just preceded the fateful March 1, when the baby was taken from its crib.

She indignantly denied insinuations hurled at her by Edward J. Reilly, chief of Hauptmann's defence counsel, and defiantly cried: "I did not!" when Reilly asked her if she herself had dropped the thumbguard where she claimed to find it.

Before she left the stand, under friendly questioning from Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, she described "Red" Johnson as "a very nice young man," and said she was "very fond of him."

GIVEN AID

As State Trooper Joseph Wolf succeeded her in the witness chair, the little nursemaid made her way to a chair next to Mrs. Elsie Whateley, the Lindbergh cook. She complained of feeling faint. Someone brought her a glass of water.

She started to leave the courtroom, reached the door and began to sway. Two men in an adjoining room rushed to her aid. She slid into their arms.

She was weeping.

Miss Gow had returned to the stand for the afternoon session, red-eyed after a conference with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and the prosecutors.

The latter finished a brief redirect examination at 2.14 p.m., and then asked the nurse to remain on call until the end of the trial.

LADDER AS EVIDENCE

Trooper Louis Bornmann followed Trooper Wolf on the stand and became the rallying point for a vigorous defence objection as the state attempted to put into evidence the ladder down which the kidnapper was alleged to have carried the baby.

"We must have its custody traced and its possession ascertained before we can accept it as evidence," the defence insisted, adding the ladder had been tampered with, its nails removed and put back.

The state contends the Lindbergh baby was instantaneously killed when the ladder broke, hurling it and the kidnapper to the ground.

AIRPORT NEED TOLD MEETING

Chamber of Commerce Directors Refer Action to New Tourist Body

The need for an authorized landing field in Victoria, which was foreseen as the future terminus for a transcanada airline system, was brought before the directors of the Chamber of Commerce by R. H. B. Ker at their luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room to-day.

The need was taken up by other speakers and the meeting referred the matter to the newly formed Tourist and Trade Development Association for further consideration with a view to having action taken which might result in establishing of an airport here.

Mr. Ker pointed out that no local planes were allowed to use fields in the city now and, strictly speaking, foreign planes coming here were not supposed to use the fields either. It was however, difficult to stop a plane landing when it arrived here from Vancouver or Seattle.

Charles H. French supported Mr. Ker's remarks and thought the new tourist organization might be well advised to take up the suggestion. It was referred to the association on motion of George McGregor.

U.S. DEFENCE BUDGET JUMPS

President Seeks Record Peace-time Vote of $792,484,265 For Army, Navy

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 7. — In the greatest peace-time national defence budget in United States history, President Roosevelt to-day asked Congress to appropriate $792,484,265 for the army and navy in the next financial year.

With this cash, Mr. Roosevelt projected in his budget message to Congress new warships, new planes and better equipped army and navy.

The budget calls for an increase of $180,000,000 over the current year's $612,785,730 of outlays by June 30, and represents more than $300,000,000 increase over the amount actually expended on national defence in 1934.

Bogus Cheques Are Passed On Prairies

Police Seek to Round Up Ring Whose Loot in Winnipeg Is $6,000; Man Held For Trial in Winnipeg; One Also in Regina

Canadian Press

Saskatoon, Jan. 7.—With police of three provinces closing in on a clever counterfeit gang, further spurious cheques were cashed in Regina to-day, it was reported here this morning.

Police Chief Donald of Saskatoon had little to add to published reports, but did express the opinion a master mind was at the head of the ring.

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—Winnipeg City police are on the trail of a smart group of counterfeiters who swooped into Winnipeg Saturday, visited more than twenty banks and disappeared with $6,000 in loot.

Mack Mahator, a Ukrainian about thirty-two years old, was taken into custody yesterday evening pending further investigation into the gang's operations, said by police to cover every province in western Canada, and possibly parts of the east.

Mahator said he had come to the city recently from Saskatoon.

Counterfeit travelers' cheques were used in obtaining the money. Starting out in an automobile when the banks opened, the gang visited as many as possible, cashed the cheques and then disappeared. Cheques were presented at practically every bank in the business section of the city, but some tellers refused to cash them. Some of the counterfeit cheques were passed at stores.

ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY

Discovery of the swindle was made accidentally. The manager of one of the victimized banks was talking to another bank manager and mentioned he had just cashed four travelers' cheques for $150 each, and the

SLOT MACHINE STORY CLEARED

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 7. — Report by the Vancouver internal audit department that the same slot machine had been certified destroyed on three occasions and yet was still awaiting destruction at police headquarters, has been disproved by the revelation that one and probably more machines bearing the same number are in existence.

Officers, whose duty it has been to secure evidence against slot machines for a number of years past, declared the number mentioned is a series number and not a serial number. They stated the series number was used where a serial number was not available.

A machine bearing the number in question was brought before Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson in police court to-day for confiscation.

"Passed through pools of oil 35.08 north latitude, 166 west longitude. British tanker La Crescenta last heard from that vicinity."

The La Crescenta, Capt. Upstill, left Port San Luis Obispo, Cal., for the Orient, December 8, being due at its destination December 29. It was believed to have a crew of from twenty-five to thirty aboard, being operated by Harris and Dixon Limited of London. It was 400 feet long, 5,800 gross tons and carried 421 barrels of crude oil.

THUMB GUARD EVIDENCE

Miss Gow's direct questioning brought out the finding by her, 100 yards from the Lindbergh home, of a thumb guard worn by the baby, a point through which the state hopes to prove the baby was killed in Hunterdon County.

Defence counsel Reilly added significance to the thumbguard when he held it up and asked the nurse: "Are you sure you didn't drop this yourself?"

Miss Gow frown into defiance as she shot back the words: "I did not."

FIRST WHO KNEW

Showing a flicker of anger, Reilly, questioning the little nurse, brought out the fact that she was the first person in the Morrow home to know the Lindberghs were not returning to Hopewell on Monday, Feb. 20.

It had previously been testified that Betty Gow did not usually accompany the fliers to Hopewell, Mrs. Lindbergh preferring the role of nursemaid herself on those occasions.

"Did you tell any of the help she was not coming back?" Reilly asked.

"Probably I did," she replied.

"Did you tell 'Red' Johnson?"

"I believe so."

"Why did you tell 'Red' Johnson Mrs. Lindbergh and the baby were not returning?"

"I cannot recall exactly telling them, but I probably would in conversation."

"Well, he didn't work on the estate, did he?"

"But I saw him that night, that evening."

"You saw him Monday evening?"

"Yes."

WENT MOTORING

"Were you out with him Monday evening?"

"Yes."

"Where did you go with him?"

"I just don't recall; riding, I believe."

"You were supposed to be very fond of the baby, weren't you?" Reilly asked a bit later.

"I was very fond of the baby," she replied.

Then Reilly asked her why she didn't volunteer to go to Hopewell and care for the baby when she learned it had a cold. She replied that Mrs. Lindbergh didn't ask her.

"But you went out Monday night with Mr. Johnson?"

"I did."

CALLED TO STAND

When called to testify by Prosecutor Wilentz at the beginning of to-day's session of the trial Miss Gow marched to the stand with short, quick steps.

She said, under direct questioning by Mr. Wilentz that her name was Bessie Mowat Gow and she lived in Scotland.

During the direct examination she identified the undershirt which she put on little Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., and identified a thumbguard which the state contends places the mitten of the child in the jurisdiction of Hunterdon County.

The trim little nurse, the last person other than the kidnapper to see the twenty-months-old baby alive, also related the details of its last day in the Lindbergh home, and told of the actions of the startled parents when they were apprised of their loss.

Colonel Lindbergh, she said, "ran into his closet, came out again with a rifle and all three of us went into the baby's room. He said,

"'And they have stolen our baby!'"

The young nurse had a very strong attachment for her murdered charge, previously revealed. It was a standing joke in the Lindbergh household that the little child could call "Gow" before it could speak his mother's name.

SEWED SHIRT

She said that at 4 o'clock on the baby's last day, she was playing with the baby in the nursery.

"Then Mrs. Lindbergh came home."

"Then what?"

"Well, I served her tea."

She described how she had sewn a little shirt for the baby, with flannel material from the nursery and thread obtained from Mrs. Ollie Whateley, wife of the butler. "I stitched it up hurriedly," she said apologetically.

"That is the piece of cloth you put next to the baby's skin," Wilentz asked, showing her a piece of the material from which the shirt was cut.

Then out came the discolored shirt which was found on the mutilated little body.

As Wilentz showed it to her, she stiffened in her chair. He asked her to identify it.

"This is the exact little shirt," she began, and then stopped to swallow. "I made for the baby."

"And then, some time later, Elsie Whateley and I had tea."

"What did you do then?" Wilentz asked.

"I wanted to sew his little sleeping suit, so I got some thread from Mrs. Whateley—blue thread."

"Do you recognize this?"

"Yes, it is a piece of the shirt. I meant to sew that in." She said there was another woolen overshirt worn by the baby.

"That's it," she said.

IDENTIFIES KNOT

Wilentz showed her a thumbguard and she described how she had put it on the baby that night.

"Is this the knot that was tied that night?" inquired Wilentz, indicating the tape fastening.

SHUTTERS WARPED

Her story next concerned how she and Mrs. Lindbergh had closed the windows and shutters in the nursery. All windows and shutters were secured except the shutters of the kidnap window in the southeast corner of the nursery.

"This one we couldn't quite close. It was slightly warped. We closed it as best we could," she said, explaining the shutters were closed but not locked.

"Mrs. Whateley and I took dinner in the kitchen. When Col. Lindbergh came in he spoke to us," she said.

"Where was Whateley?" Wilentz asked his witness.

"Mr. Whateley, the butler, was in the pantry, I believe."

"Did you see him from time to time?"

"As I recall, I did."

IN CONVERSATION

"And you told Mr. Johnson the Lindberghs were not coming back Monday night. Is that correct?"

"I just don't recall if I told Mr. Johnson that."

"Did you tell anybody else?"

"I probably did."

"Why?"

"For no reason. In the house, I mean, I suppose it was a natural thing for anyone to ask me why the baby wasn't coming back and I would reply that he had a slight cold and that Mr. Lindbergh was bringing him back."

TOLD NO TRADESPEOPLE

"But you told no tradespeople, did you?"

"No."

"No."

"And you told no stranger?"

"No."

"And you did not tell this defendant, did you?"

"I did not."

INFORMED BY TELEPHONE

Miss Gow was in the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, at Englewood, N.J., when she received the telephone call from Hopewell informing her the Lindberghs would not return that day.

Miss Gow would not agree with Reilly that only she and Ollie Whateley, the Lindbergh butler, who later died, and the latter's wife, knew about the call.

"There are other ways of knowing," she said.

"Other ways of knowing?"

"Well, the telephone comes in the house."

"You didn't suspect the telephone of being tapped, did you?"

"Oh, no, of course not."

Then she acknowledged that on the fateful night she conversed with Johnson over the telephone while the Lindberghs dined.

She said she had left a message at Johnson's home for the call, so she could tell him she would be unable to keep a date with him.

VOICE BROKE

During this Miss Gow's attitude was startlingly. Her voice broke for the first time when she related the ghastly discovery the baby was gone.

She entered the nursery, and then:

"I ground over to the crib. I didn't turn the light on."

"Because you might awaken him?"

"Yes, that's right. Then I felt all over the bed. He wasn't there."

Her testimony went on:

"I thought that Mrs. Lindbergh may have him. I went out of the baby's room into the hallway and into Mrs. Lindbergh's room.

"I met her, or saw her coming out of the bathroom and asked her if she had the baby. She looked surprised and said no she didn't.

"I said, well, where's the colonel? He may have him.

"I said, Where is he? She said, 'Downstairs in the library.'

"I turned quickly and ran downstairs to the library, where I saw the colonel sitting at his desk reading.

"I said, Colonel, do you have the baby? He said no, isn't he in his crib? I said, no.

GOT HIS RIFLE

"He ran past me upstairs and into the baby's room. I followed him and from there entered Mrs. Lindbergh's room. He didn't say anything. He ran into his closet, came out again with a rifle and all three of us went into the baby's room.

He said 'Anne, they have stolen our baby!'"

Reilly's questions at one point brought Attorney-General David T. Wilentz to his feet with an objection that: "This woman is not on trial, not yet."

The nurse readily acknowledged going to the movies and keeping company with "Red" Johnson, the sailor who was questioned in the Lindbergh case and later deported because of illegal entry into the United States.

FARE AND $650

She said the state had paid her fare from Scotland for her testimony and given her $650.

"For your services here?" Reilly asked.

Wilentz asked her to describe the finding of the baby's thumbguard.

"I believe it was about a month after the kidnapping," she said. "Mrs. Whateley and I were walking about 100 yards from the house.

"I saw it lying on the ground and I picked it up."

Then came the story of the identification of the body. After that Wilentz turned her over to Reilly.

EMPLOYED IN DETROIT

In reply to defence questions about her background she said she was once employed in Detroit, and mentioned four or five places she held as maid.

Did you ever apply for work through the Hackensack Employment Agency?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And you were unable to supply references?

Here Wilentz objected, and Reilly rephrased his question.

Q.—You did not give any references when you looked for a job?

A.—No.

TELEPHONE CALL

Reilly switched to the week-end preceding the kidnapping, and the telephone call the nurse received from Johnson the night of the kidnapping.

Q.—Where was the call from?

A.—Englewood.

"Didn't you know it was from Hopewell?"

The witness testified that Mrs. Whateley's window in the Lindbergh home faced those of the nursery.

She said the ground floor was vacant until 9 p.m., when she went up to look at a dress with Mrs. Whateley.

A.—Yes, at 9 o'clock.

Reilly took the sleeping suit from among the exhibits, showed it to Miss Gow and asked, "What is this?"

"It's the baby's sleeping suit," she replied.

Q.—How many of these did the baby have?

A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Now about these thumbguards. How many did you have for child?

A.—Two.

DID NOT DROP IT

Reilly electrified the court when he picked up the thumbguard and asked Betty Gow:

"Did you drop this on the road on your way into town?"

"With all those policemen searching night and day for a month, you want us to believe you could pick this up without having dropped it?" he asked.

"This thumbguard isn't muddy, and it isn't soiled," Reilly continued. "I'll leave it to the jury as to whether it is shiny."

Betty Gow said that when she had seen the thumbguard it was muddy.

"Youre a very bright young lady, arent you? Reilly demanded.

"I am, was her part reply.

At 12.30 p.m. Reilly asked adjournment and the judge acquiesced.

The afternoon session got underway promptly at 1.45 p.m., Betty Gow returning to the witness stand to face another barrage of cross-examination from Reilly.

"Do you remember Miss Nellie O'Connell, who came over on the boat with you?" she was asked.

"No."

"Now I show you a photograph and ask you whether or not you know the original," said Reilly, giving her a photo that was not further identified.

"No. I never saw that before," she answered after a quick glance.

KNOWS CONDON

"I have seen him."

Q.—Do you know who he is?

A.—Dr. John F. Condon.

Reilly asked then if she had ever been at City Island, or Hunter's Island or the waters adjacent.

"No," was the reply in both cases.

The nursemaid next denied any knowledge of two women named Paulette and Louise Dubois.

A.—No.

Q.—Mrs. Potter?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever go boating in or around New Rochelle?

A.—No.

Reilly asked several questions as to whether or not Miss Gow had visited the Lamont yacht either at its mooring in North River or off the Englewood dock.

He concluded with a final thrust.

A.—No.

A.—No.

She ended her cross-examination with the vigorous assertion: "I never visited any boat owned by Dr. Condon."

Wilentz in rebuttal asked first: "You didn't know Dr. Condon at all before March 1, 1932, did you?"

She replied in the negative.

Wilentz turned to Betty's friend, "Red" Johnson.

Q.—You were quite fond of him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You had no agreements with the Lindberghs not to go out with young men?

A.—No.

Kidneys Cause Much Trouble Says Doctor

Doctor's Prescription Begins and Cleans Sick Kidneys—Removes Acids —Works in 15 Minutes

Dr. C. S. Rendelle, well-known Physician and Medical Examiner of San Francisco, says: "Since the Kidneys purify the blood, the poisons collect in these organs and must be promptly flushed from the system; otherwise, they re-enter the blood stream and create a toxic condition.

Your blood circulates 4 times a minute through 5 million tiny, delicate tubes in your Kidneys which are endangered by drastic, irritating drugs, modern foods and drinks, worry, and exposure. Beware of Kidney trouble if you suffer from Night Rising, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes, Acidity, or Loss of Energy.

Dr. Walter R. George, for many years Health Director of Indianapolis, U.S.A., says: "Insufficient Kidney excretions are the cause of much needless suffering with Aching Back, Frequent Night Risings, Itching, Smarting, Burning, Painful Joints, Rheumatic Pains, Headaches, and a generally rub-down, exhausted body. I am of the opinion that the prescription Cystex corrects such conditions. It aids in flushing poisons from the urinary tract, and a freeing the blood of retained toxins. Cystex deserves the indorsement of all doctors." If you suffer from Kidney and Bladder trouble, delay no longer. Get the genuine Cystex (pronounced Sistex) which contains the doctor's special Kidney prescription called Cystex (pronounced Sistex) which will help your Kidneys in a few hours. It starts work in 15 minutes. Gently heals, soothes, and cleans raw, sick Kidneys. Brings new health, youth, and vitality in 48 hours. It is helping thousands of sufferers and must end your troubles and make you feel like new in 8 days, or money back on return of empty package. Get Cystex from your druggist to-day. Be well and strong next week. (Advt.)

U.S. Budget Is Set At $8,520,413,000

Work-relief Fund of 4,000,000,000 Is Asked of Congress By Roosevelt; Peak Deficit of Over $34,000,000,000 Will Be Reached in June of Next Year

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 7.—A $4,000,000,000 work-relief fund was asked of the United States Congress to-day by President Roosevelt in a message forecasting a new peak public debt of $34,250,000,000 on June 30, 1936.

Declaring unemployment alone blocked a balanced budget, he envisaged "an evening up of government expenditures and receipts as rapidly as private industry is able to re-employ those who now are without work."

This second financial accounting of the New Deal, read separately to an expectant Senate and House, allowed for the spending of $17,101,000,000 in the two-year fiscal period that will end eighteen months hence.

The President's request for $4,000,000,000 was coupled with the recommendation that the money be "in one sum, subject to allocation" by himself. This phase of the budget was expected to stir congressional controversy.

BIG DEFICIT

The total asked for the year beginning next July 1 is $8,520,413,000, with receipts estimated at $2,901,904,030. This would mean a $4,538,508,970 deficit, compared with $4,989,418,338 expected for the year closing next June.

Congress was informed the government's income would meet all expenditures except those "to give work to the unemployed." Mr. Roosevelt did "not consider it advisable at this time" to propose new taxes, but asked the continuation of existing levels.

To newspapermen, the President said there was no need for "inflation" to finance his huge 1936 budget. The Treasury planned to borrow needed funds. But he warned simultaneously that extra appropriations by Congress must be paid for with new taxes. Significantly, there was no budget provision for cashing the $2,100,000,000 soldiers' bonus. Friends of that payment plan to press for it regardless.

GOAL NOT REACHED

The goal set a year ago for balancing the budget in the 1936 fiscal period with a peak debt of $31,500,000,000 was recalled by the President with the remark:

"Unemployment is still large."

Reviewing the budget message with reporters, Mr. Roosevelt said he expected the $4,000,000,000 work programme to get started by early April and reach full swing by fall.

For "regular" government costs, exclusive of "recovery and relief," the President asked $3,938,000,000 in 1936 compared with the current $3,321,000,000. Major items in the increase:

1. A $180,000,000 boost for national defence to $792,484,000.

2. A $65,000,000 increase for restoring the government pay cut next July 1.

3. A $200,000,000 allotment for normal public works out of a proposed annual $300,000,000 fund.

FOR PENSIONS

4. $130,000,000 more for veterans' pensions and other requirements.

5. A $20,000,000 boost in contributions to the civil service fund; $50,000,000 more for the veterans' certificate fund.

Mr. Roosevelt forecast an increase in government revenue next year to $3,991,000,000 from the estimated income of $3,711,000,000 this year. Both figures were dependent, however, on continuing the present tax structure, including three-cent postage.

HIGH SPENDING RATE

Washington, Jan. 7. — Federal spending at the rate of $835,000,000 a month during the first six months of 1935, resulting in a current fiscal year deficit of $4,989,418,338 and a gross debt peak of $31,096,633,474, was forecast to-day by Secretary Morgenthau in the United States Treasury's annual report to Congress.

It is estimated that expenditures for the year would be $6,802,000,000, including $4,042,613,852 for relief, offset by receipts of $3,711,650,088.

The predicted deficit would be $4,033,482,460 in excess of the actual deficit at the end of the last fiscal year on June 10, 1934.

DEBT INCREASES

The Secretary foresaw a continuance of heavy operating losses due to emergency expenditures. He estimated the Treasury would go farther into debt during the fiscal year 1936, when expenditures would amount to $8,520,413,000, offset in part by receipts of $3,991,904,030, resulting in a deficit of $4,538,508,970, and swelling the gross public debt to $34,250,000,000.

A sharp paring-down in emergency expenditure items in 1936 was forecast, but an expected outlay of $3,000,000,000 for "relief of unemployment" would bring the total of such expenditures to $4,122,012,475, or only half a billion less than expected in the present fiscal period.

The Secretary found a cheering possibility in the estimate that income taxes in the fiscal year 1936 would improve by $187,000,000 over 1935, and amount to $1,150,000,000. This, he said, would reflect the "further gains because of the moderately higher income anticipated for the calendar years 1934-1935."

Mr. Morgenthau pointed out that in view of the nature of the federal tax structure, it was not to be expected that revenues would reflect promptly an anticipated improvement in business conditions.

Questions About Tinplate Cartel

Can Company Man Tells Federal Commission He Knows of None

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—The biggest buyer of tinplate in Canada, H. J. Bigger of the American Can Company, Hamilton, Ont., told the Royal Commission on Base Buying here to-day he had no personal knowledge of a world-wide tinplate cartel with headquarters in Wales. Its existence has been alleged many times before the commission and the old tariff board, but Mr. Bigger said he had only read about it.

Mr. Bigger told the commission the Richard Thomas Company Limited, Wales, one of the largest and oldest tinplate companies, opened a plant at Barnia, Ont., a year ago as a blind to maintain dumping duties against United States tinplate. It was opened "to keep the dump duty applicable to tinplate—at least that was the reason advanced," he said.

POSITION EXPLAINED

"What good is a dump duty," asked asked Chairman W. W. Kennedy, "if they (Welsh manufacturers) have the market anyway?"

Under the Canadian tariff, as written after the Ottawa Imperial Conference, Welsh tinplate was admitted free while the rest of the world was taxed 30 per cent. Mr. Bigger replied. If, however, tinplate was not manufactured in Canada, the 30 per cent against the rest of the world would disappear.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Trade Minister, quoted evidence presented before the old tariff board by Neil McLean of Black's Harbor, N.B., which alleged the Canadian tinplate market had been parcelled out by the cartel. At that time (1927 or 1928) Mr. McLean said the Canadian market went to the United States manufacturers.

MINES BUREAU SHOWS ACTIVITY

Island Body Will Submit Brief to Commission Investigating Oil and Coal

Canadian Press

Nanaimo, Jan. 7. — The Vancouver Island Bureau of Mines and Commerce has decided to work with the Nanaimo Board of Trade in preparing a brief for submission to the commission appointed by the British Columbia government to investigate the oil and coal industries.

If possible, the bureau plans to name, in conjunction with the Board of Trade, a costs production expert to give evidence before the commission.

Changes in the provincial mining laws to force miners to sink mineral claims at least ten feet per year in order to retain them, were suggested by members of the bureau. The matter will be taken up with the provincial department of mines.

FINED FOR FAST DRIVING

Nanaimo, Jan. 7.— Walter Thorne, Great Central Lake resident, was fined $10 and costs for driving to the common danger. The charge arose out of a collision on Comox Road, Nanaimo, New Year's Eve.

Provinces Watch Bennett's Plans

Indications Ontario and Quebec Would Resist Invasion of Rights

Canadian Press

Ottawa, January 7.—Announcement by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett he would seek support for his government in the 1935 Dominion general election on a platform of reform of the economic system and advanced social legislation has started the political ball rolling throughout Canada.

Of particular note in the Prime Minister's announced intention of establishing unemployment insurance, a new form of old age pensions, sickness and accident insurance on a contributory basis, and uniform work and wages laws, is the fact he runs straight into the barrier set up by the constitutional rights of the provinces. The crux is true of his policy of government regulation and control of business.

How the Prime Minister intends to overcome that difficulty remains to be disclosed.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC

From spokesmen of the Ontario and Quebec governments there have already been heard expressions of opinion that would indicate any invasion of the rights of these provinces would be resisted.

Charges the Prime Minister's new attitude constituted a "death-bed repentance" on the eve of a general election have already been heard in some quarters.

Any move to strike at incomes received by those described by the Prime Minister as in the non-productive class would cut into Mr. Bennett's own resources, since he is known to receive a large income from his investments.

Parties opposing the government in the House of Commons have not announced their campaign plans and it is expected these will be completed and put into action when parliament assembles on January 17.

RUMOURS OF DISSENSION

Immediately the Prime Minister's new policies became known a fresh crop of rumors of cabinet dissension grew up because, it was said, of the radical nature of his proposals from the traditional Conservative point of view. But from Mr. Bennett himself came assurance that, if any of his colleagues were opposed to his platform, they had not communicated the fact to him.

Because of the Prime Minister's political activities, and increased activity on the part of those who are handling preparation of the new voters' lists, the belief has grown up in some quarters the polling date may be as early as April. However, the only thing of a definite nature so far indicated is that the election will come not later than October.

EDMONTON OPINION

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Jan. 7.—Nothing has been said by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in his addresses to the people of Canada to give hopes that any effort will be made to solve the greatest problems of all—financial reform and reduction in the wages of money, Mayor Joseph Clarke told a meeting here yesterday evening.

Announced as a discussion of the relative merits of recent proposals by Mr. Bennett and Mayor G. G. McGeer of Vancouver, Mayor Clarke's meeting gave some time to current questions of civic finance, again urging adoption of a scheme to suspend sinking fund payments.

"Gerry McGeer's victory at Vancouver shows the temper of our people and the way they are thinking. McGeer's tremendous majority was enough to cause Bennett to make speeches twice a week," Mayor Clarke said.

"Everything McGeer has said is an attack on the vested interests, the financial racketeers . . . nothing has been said by Bennett to give us any hope that he intends to reduce the wages of money, to stop usury and end the banking racket—the bankers who create money by a scratch of the pen, and charge interest for it," the mayor continued.

PEOPLE'S CHIEF WORRY

The mayor was scornful of the Prime Minister's plan to equalize wealth distribution by amending the income tax laws. "Most of us are worrying about trying to get any income at all, let alone enough to pay a tax on," he commented.

The speaker saw a "fine mess" coming up as a result of the Prime Minister's "radical" addresses. "Cahan, Rhodes and the other ultra-Tory, big-business-supporting members of the cabinet will not back their leader in his public utterances," he predicted.

STAFF OF PAPER TO SHARE PROFITS

"Internal reorganization has been effected within The Albertan Publishing Company Limited to permit the employees of the company to have a direct interest in the business.

"In future, 50 per cent of the profits of the business are to be set aside to be returned direct to the staff. For the purposes of computation of profits the owners have made liberal contributions towards overhead charges, particularly with regard to interest and depreciation. These will be largely absorbed by the proprietors direct and will net be a complete onus on the staff."

WISH TO HOLD COUNCIL SEAT

Canadian Officials Protest International Labor Organization Change

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—Canada will not willingly relinquish the seat she has held for so long in the executive body of the International Labor Organization of the League of Nations, according to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Dominion Minister of Labor.

A statement issued by the minister on Saturday, after citing current reports, said:

"The statement that Canada ranks at the foot of the list of the eight chief industrial nations, however, is quite inaccurate. The list in question was determined by the Council of the League of Nations in 1922 on standards previously sanctioned by the Council. On one basis of computation, Canada stands fourth in the list, and on the other basis of calculation, sixth.

"The Dominion of Canada has been most active in the work of the International Labor Conference and of the governing body since their inception fifteen years ago and will not willingly relinquish the seat which she has held for so long on the executive body of the International Labor Organization. The Canadian Government is closely in touch with the situation in Geneva and has submitted to the authorities there our arguments in support of our right to continue on the governing body."

Vancouver Has Day Of Prayer

Mayor McGeer and Civic Officials Attend Services; Churches Crowded

By FORBES BEUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Jan. 7.— Vancouver went to church yesterday and bowed its head in "service, humiliation and prayer," as proclaimed by Mayor G. G. McGeer.

Thousands of citizens joined the ranks of regular attendants to walk the streets and avenues in brilliant forenoon sunshine or evening dark, to seek hushed places of worship.

The response of churches to the proclamation was general and sermons struck the note of prayer and contrition, of looking forward to a New Year and new beginnings.

Archbishop A. U. de Pencier, Metropolitan of the Anglican Church in British Columbia, had asked the clergy of his communion to observe the day in accord with the Mayor's request, and himself read the lessons and said prayers in Christ Church Cathedral. Special prayers were offered at all masses in Catholic churches on the instructions of Archbishop W. M. Duke.

LEAD BY MAYOR

Mayor McGeer, accompanied by the city council and Police Chief W. W. Foster and twelve police officers, attended the morning service at Christ Church and the evening service at St. Andrew's-Wesley United Church.

He said there was little he could add to the words of his proclamation: "We have fallen upon evil days because we have forgotten God; we have been too proud to pray to the God Who made us." He could only express, in addition, his appreciation of the response from every quarter which had made the day of worship "one from which every good will flow."

"Let us confess our sins in the words of the general confession," said Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, rector of Christ Church, and the congregation repeated the words of the confession, "We have erred and strayed . . ."

REVOLT SEEN

"There has come a great revolt against irreligion," Mr. Wilkinson said in his sermon. "Man can no longer live on negations," adding, "The way to God is always the same—the way of penitence and faith. God dwells first and foremost in the human heart.

"We have assembled as citizens to pray for those in authority, for the city's welfare and for the removal of the blights of poverty and vice."

Quoting from the prophet Zechariah, "Jerusalem shall be called the city of truth," he declared it was the Jew who gave the ideals of civic virtue and who, persecuted, yet had stood at the grave of his oppressors.

"Where there is no vision, the people perish," he quoted, and said, "Men of vision are those who lead the community to a better life." The individual he admonished, "If you want to put the world right, start with yourself."

"If there is one thing needed today, it is a sense of God's sovereignty. Let God work in us individually and civically."

MANY TURNED AWAY

At the morning service in Christ Church Cathedral scores were turned away as they crowded the edifice. Fifteen minutes before the service there was standing room only. The mayor and municipal officials and members of the judiciary occupied pews at the front of the church. The service was unique in the history of Vancouver.

The purpose of the service was announced "to pray for the mayor, the aldermen, judges and magistrates, members of the school board and all civic officials, that they may be endued with courage, intelligence, imagination and unselfishness, and that the citizens may be joined with them in mutual service."

LEADER'S CREDENTIALS

At the evening service in St. Andrew's-Wesley United Church, attended by the mayor and the accompanying party, Rev. Willard Brewing preached on "The Credentials of a Leader," and the congregation joined in observing the "day of prayer."

Yesterday was the mayor's forty-seventh birthday.

BODIES FOUND AT VANCOUVER

You may be an employer—or an employee. In either case you know the meaning of "pay day"!

RUNNING a business is like running a household: Current income must be depended upon to meet current expenses. Help must be paid regularly. Materials purchased must be paid for according to terms. Rent, light and other bills must be paid when due.

The merchant, the physician, the dentist—all credit granters—in order to meet their obligations, must insist on prompt payment of their accounts in accordance with standard terms.

Each month's charges are due on the first of the following month and payable not later than the 10th. The 10th, by courtesy, is the final date for payment—after that, bills are considered delinquent.

You are their paymaster! Prompt payment of their accounts will enable them (and their creditors in turn) to pay their bills promptly. Everyone will benefit, including yourself—for paying bills promptly builds a good credit record.

London, Jan. 7.—Cecil Aldin, sixty-four, well-known artist, who won wide recognition for his drawings of dogs, died yesterday.

PITTSBURGH TO REDUCE OUTLAYS

Pittsburgh, Jan. 7.—Last year's stunts will not collect this year's taxes, says Mayor William N. McNair, "so I am going to fire everybody and cut government costs."

"Last year," he explained to the Henry George Club, "I threatened to do what the federal government does—print some money. Well, you should have seen the taxes come rolling in. But last year's publicity stunts will not work again, so we shall try firing."

OLD TIMER DIES

Edmonton, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—Member of the original "bull outfit" which trekked into the Peace River country in 1909 from Edmonton, by a caravan of oxen, Amos Shark, seventy-nine years old, is dead at Grande Prairie, Alta. He was born at Sherkston, Welland County, Ontario. The widow, Candace Ann Shark, also a native of Sherkston, two sons and three daughters survive him.

MacDonald Has Note Of Cheer

British Premier Sees Better Times Ahead When Speaking in London

Canadian Press

London, Jan. 7. — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in a speech here Saturday evening said everything pointed to a year of improving trade, rising wages and increasing employment. His address took the form of a new year message.

The time was close at hand, said Mr. MacDonald, when rationalization of the coal industry must be taken in hand, including royalties. It was anticipated, he added, that a well-thought-out and adequately supported scheme of land settlement would be launched, aimed ultimately at placing thousands of families back on the land.

The year 1935 would be significant in the history of the British Commonwealth of Nations, the Prime Minister said, as the year during which India received new status and new responsibility, which she heartily welcomed.

VANCOUVER'S NEW CHIEF

THE CAREER OF COL. W. W. FOSTER, D.S.O., as chief of the Vancouver police will be followed with close attention not only by members of the law enforcement services of the country, but by the general public, especially that section of it which is familiar with the records in other places where this important department has been put under the direction of men who had no prior police training and experience.

In not a few communities military officers of distinction but with no previous association with police work have been appointed to direct this service, but with unsatisfactory results in many cases. Outstanding among these was the appointment of Lord Byng as head of the London Metropolitan Police. That great soldier gave everything he had in him to the job, but found it so vastly different from anything which he had done before that it levied a heavy toll upon him and he had to give it up. Conducting a conflict on the battlefield with all kinds of resources in men, money and supplies is a different matter from conducting a war against the underworld with comparatively limited resources, a war which never ends.

General Draper, chief of the Toronto police force, has been in hot water frequently, while General Smedley Butler who undertook to clean up Philadelphia had to quit with that city still uncleaned. A few years ago Vancouver appointed Colonel Edgett as chief of police, but his position was made untenable by the Taylor administration, although that in itself implied no reflection upon either his capacity or integrity.

Col. Foster is an engineer by profession, a former Deputy Minister of Public Works and later a Conservative politician. These positively are not qualifications for the direction of a police force. It may be that he has some latent but hitherto unapplied instinct for police work, but this is very unusual. There are, of course, many people who are quite confident that they can run a police department better than those who have spent their lives in police service, just as there are innumerable people who think they know more law than judges and lawyers, more about medicine than the medical profession, and more about conducting the affairs of a great city than those who have been actively engaged in municipal politics for many years.

Efficient police direction can be learned in no other school than that of actual experience. Policemen learn their work in the doing of it and invariably this takes time. The record everywhere shows that the best officers are those who have either a natural flair for this service, or have won their way to executive posts by special experience and training. In one respect Colonel Foster is fortunate, and that is in the fact that he is to receive the advice of Inspector Cruickshank of the British Columbia provincial police, and Colonel Bryan, former commissioner of the Alberta provincial police, in the reorganization of his department. In a year or two from now it will be possible to appraise Colonel Foster's record in his new post fairly in its reflection in the crime sheet of Vancouver. Meanwhile, it is hoped that he and the service under him will be able to make Vancouver a safer and more comfortable place to live in than it has been in recent years.

PRINTER'S DEVIL TO MAYOR

THE RECENT MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN in Toronto which resulted in the election of Controller James Simpson to the chief magistrate's chair divided newspaper opinion. The Star used up many columns in support of the successful candidate, while The Globe wanted Alderman Hunt to get in. Mr. Simpson finished ahead of his nearest opponent—it was a four-cornered contest—by about four thousand, but he was in a minority as far as votes were concerned of more than seventeen thousand.

For a candidate for public office to head the poll in three and four-cornered contests is by no means unusual in this or other countries where our electoral system prevails. There is always an attempt, of course, to explain it away, dependent upon the political predilection of the person or newspaper directly interested. For example, The Toronto Star, Liberal, says:

> James Simpson is mayor of Toronto by a majority which leaves no doubt about the wishes of the electorate. It is, however, a Simpson victory, not a C.C.F. victory. He is the first non-Conservative mayor since Joseph Oliver was elected in 1909 unless Mr. Maguire is considered to have been a Liberal when first elected in 1923—he openly allied himself with the Conservative party in the year following. But while Mr. Simpson is a non-Conservative, he is mayor to-day by the votes of thousands upon thousands of Conservatives, and Liberals as well, who felt him to be the best choice for the position. It is a personal triumph; a tribute to the man and his work.

The Toronto Globe, Independent Liberal, observes:

> Controller Simpson has proved himself the most popular of the mayoralty candidates in an election which did not do justice to the common sense of Toronto, but which, nevertheless, represents the verdict of the largest group of those who went to the polls, and therefore must be accepted by all citizens, voters and non-voters alike.
> If Controller Simpson is to be congratulated for winning, Alderman Hunt is to be congratulated for the close run he gave his competitor under conditions not at all favorable. He had to contend with a whispering campaign which every thoughtful citizen must deplore, and he was confronted with unfair and untruthful statements from many sources. An attempt was made to raise prejudices against him. He did not at any time resort to unfair tactics or unreasonable arguments. Although he lost, he conducted his battle on a high plane, corresponding with the high principles he set in seeking a majority support.

It is not difficult to understand The Star's interest in Mr. Simpson. It has known him, "man and boy, almost from the time he came to Toronto." As a new apprentice to the printing trade in the old Toronto News office, he walked out with the striking printers when they founded The Star. That was forty-three years ago. Thus he has risen from the status of "printer's devil" to that of the chief magistracy of Canada's second largest city. This is a record of which he may well be proud.

THE LEAGUE AVERTS WAR

RT. HON. ANTHONY EDEN, BRITISH statesman, who has been active in the direction of international disarmament, said in London a few days ago that the closing weeks of 1934 had seen a "definite, even startling, improvement in international outlook." This, he asserted, was mainly due to the handling by the Council of the League of Nations of two potentially dangerous problems, the Saar plebiscite and the Jugoslavian-Hungarian dispute over the Marseilles assassinations. He saw fair prospects of a satisfactory final conclusion of both problems.

The fact that the governments of Europe which were involved in these two formidable menaces to peace turned promptly to the League of Nations, and that the more immediately dangerous one has been disposed of without war, has revived the prestige of that organization in a striking degree. Its standing had suffered considerably from its failure to act under the covenant when Japan tore Manchuria from China, although it was perfectly obvious that the hands of Geneva were tied then by the policy exigencies of several important members who were trying to ingratiate themselves with Japan for the protection of their special commercial interests in the puppet state. Now that Japan is endeavoring to squeeze some of them out of their enormous oil business in Manchuria, is otherwise challenging them—and quite successfully—in the world markets with other products, and has denounced the naval treaty of 1922, they probably are extremely sorry that they made the League use the soft pedal at that time.

The problem of the Saar has not been settled yet, but it is noteworthy that the only international body on the spot to see that a fair plebiscite is taken is one chosen by the League. If there had been no such institution, direct action would have been taken by one or more powers and that would have resulted in war.

The assassinations at Marseilles left an ugly situation. Jugoslavia was furious over the murder of her king, while France bitterly resented the killing of her able foreign minister in the midst of his great work of assuring goodwill in central Europe. Jugoslavia blamed terrorist circles in Hungary for the assassinations, and kicked out of her country a large number of Hungarians who lived there. Then she referred her complaint to the League which appointed an independent commission of investigation. If there had been no League, Jugoslavia, fighting mad, would have thrown an army into Hungary, and this, in turn, might have involved Italy, France and the Little Entente. The fact is that more and more the great powers of Europe are beginning to see in the League an effective safety valve against immediate warlike action. Russia's application for membership is particularly significant in that respect.

After all, Mr. Bennett did say in 1930 that he would end unemployment, or perish in the attempt. He has not ended unemployment—but he is bound to perish politically when the voters of Canada are permitted to hurl their cold ballots at him.

We really shall have to rebuke The New York Times for pulling this one: "A recent English tourist in Canada was being shown the sights of Ottawa by a Canadian guide. The Englishman finally asked: 'Who is that man walking round and round Parliament House and muttering to himself?' The answer was: 'Oh, that is Mr. Bennett, the Prime Minister of the Dominion. He is holding a meeting of the Cabinet'." The New York daily will have to be told that while there is moss on that story, the same Prime Minister is still conversing with himself.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TWICE PUNISHED
The London Advertiser

A farmer near Cobourg was chased into his house and kept prisoner there by an angry bull and the owner of the animal has been fined and doubtless will be ordered to keep the bull tied up. Yet if the owner keeps the bull tied up the animal will just get crosser than ever. If the magistrate would let this bull toss a person now and then he might learn to like his environment.

"SOUND AND FURY"
The Ottawa Journal

There has come greater capacity for self-criticism. The tragedy of the old oratory was not that it did not discuss alternatives. It was that alternatives did not exist. Things were not merely right; they were so right they could not go wrong. So year after year, no matter what came or changed, we had the same old platform clichés, the same pitiful obliviousness to facts. More than that, and worse, a public regimented into belief in shibboleths drank eagerly of such things, cheered on the orators. A slogan became a policy; a phrase a solution; a headline a principle to fight for. Everything was for the best in the best of all worlds.

NO TIME FOR PARTNERSHIP
The Toronto Star

Premier Hepburn finds himself, in so far as party politics go, between the upper and nether millstones of a Conservative government at Ottawa and the Conservative city of Toronto. The Bennett government ceases to co-operate with Ontario in unemployment relief as it co-operated with Ontario last year when Mr. Henry was Premier. Toronto continues to ask from the Hepburn government all that it asked from the Henry government and may ask more because conditions are worse. Premier Hepburn ascribes to political partisanship the difficult position in which he is placed in his endeavours to relieve distress. While Prime Minister Bennett and Mayor Stewart may be Conservative partisans, Premier Hepburn is a Liberal partisan, and it might be suggested to all three of them that thousands of people in Ontario cannot be permitted to starve and freeze in order that political leaders may feed and gratify their partisanship. Conditions are too serious for that.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

FALLEN IDOL

THERE is a certain actress in the movies, whose name I certainly do not propose to divulge, who strikes me as about the most lovely of created things. I have worshipped her from a long distance for a long time. I was content that she should remain a shadow on a screen while I sat in a theatre looking at her — a respectable and a conventional relationship. It seemed to me she grew lovelier with the passing of the years.

Then the other morning The Colonist, with a callous disregard for me and all the other lady's admirers, had to go and publish a news picture of her on the desk of a liner with a lot of other people. It was a cruel thing to do. For, alas, my lovely lady, without her screen make-up, without those long, lustrous but false eyelashes, without her seductive gowns and alluring poses, turned out to be a middle-aged person of considerable girth and numerous wrinkles. You can see a hundred girls on the streets of Victoria much better looking any day of the week.

My last illusion has been shattered. It was cruel of The Colonist and it was a great mistake for the lady to let herself get caught by the photographers without her war paint. If the newspapers continue to do this sort of thing, where is it going to end? Soon there will be nothing left to worship at all.

WRITHINGS

IT WOULD be instructive, exquisitely amusing and yet a little tragic if one could look into the hearts of Conservative politicians and editors these days. Now that their leader, Mr. Bennett, has moved straight over to the left and proposed to interfere in business, to regulate and control our economy, how are they going to feel about it, these politicians and editors who have always insisted that Mr. Bennett was the one last great bulwark against any interference in business?

What secret flagellations of the soul, what private writhings of the spirit, what mental setting-up exercises are they going through as they try to swallow themselves completely, and turn themselves disagreeably inside out before the full view of the cynical populace?

Ah, well I remember when the first timid Marketing Act was introduced into the Provincial Legislature a few years ago. A great Conservative newspaper not far from here shrieked in large black headlines across its front page that Communism and the methods of the Russian Soviets were being introduced into Canada. Conservative politicians (and many Liberals, too) said Canadian business would never be put under the iron heel of the government. Now, when Mr. Bennett is prepared to go the whole hog, the Conservative newspapers and the Conservative politicians are saying of course that is what they meant all the time.

I have no use for those who dismiss any programme as worthless because it comes from the other party. The average elector, if he has any sense, will take what he wants from whatever source he can get it and thank heaven. But what is the necessity for all these Conservative wriggling and squirmings, all these attempts to explain that Mr. Bennett's programme of black reaction was all part of his plan of Red Radicalism? Why don't Mr. Bennett and the Conservative Party come out and say frankly that they have been wrong from the start, that their whole theory and philosophy of government and economics have broken down, that they have seen the light (by a curious coincidence on the eve of an election), and that they are going to repent and try something new?

It would be the convincing way. It would be the popular way.

And at the same time it wouldn't be a bad idea for the Liberal Party to ask itself in the secret of its chamber where it stands on the real issues of the day; whether it still interprets Liberalism in the Victorian fashion as leaving our economics alone, or, in the Roosevelt fashion, of doing something about them.

Last spring in Ottawa — haughty, respectfully, not knowing a thing about it, but guided by the dumb instinct which protects the young and the blind—I said here that before the year was out all Canadian politicians of every name and party would be put on the spot and forced to declare where they stood on the only real issue of our time—whether the state is going to attempt to control our economy or not; in other words, they would have to decide, in broad terms, between the Hoover Plan and the Roosevelt Plan. For once a prediction made here seems to be turning out right.

CURIOUS REDS

SOMETHING queer is happening in Soviet Russia. I don't mean mere politics or economics. I mean something much deeper and more fundamental. Something is happening to the women over there. At a recent meeting of Communist youth in Moscow, it developed that the young men of the country are dissatisfied with the girls. Why? Because they are disloyal to Communism? Because they don't take life seriously enough? Not at all. Because they are too loyal and take it too seriously.

"The time has come," one of the chief speakers shouted, "when it must be obligatory for every girl to carry face powder and perfume. There are certain factors which, when present, cause any woman to lose the elements of coquetry which she should possess. Comrades, we must work to liquidate these factors!"

This is the scientific Communist way of saying that girls must look nice, must smell nice and mustn't have shiny noses. When some Comrade asked whether the speaker would also advocate rouge, the great reformer replied: "For the time being we can get along without rouge. But let us have face powder and coquetry."

There, you will say, is a Five Year Plan worthy of support. But it makes you wonder what has happened to the women of Russia. Have they, under the impact of the great experiment, lost that instinct for coquetry which is part of Nature's scheme of things, without which the whole programme of the World Revolution would perish for lack of material? When they have to be forced to dress up and make themselves alluring, what is going to happen to the Russian race?

Over here, of course, our women are allowed a splendid freedom in these matters. They can dress and paint and powder as individual fancy dictates, with the result that they all dress and paint and powder in ex-

PA'S QUIT SMOKING

Pa's quit smoking! Consequently
Tiptoe near him very gently.
Don't disturb him when he's reading.
Such a dreadful life we're leading.
Who were last year, oh, so happy?
Now he's quarrelsome and snappy.
Do not ask him for the "funnies"
Or he'll bit your heads off, honies!

Pa's quit smoking! Poor old duffer!
Just for that we all must suffer.
Be as careful as you're able.
Don't spill water on the table.
Don't give vent to childish laughter.
You'll be sorry for it after!
Up the stairway don't go thumping
Or you'll set his nerves to jumping!

Pa's quit smoking! Do not whistle
Or his few gray hairs will bristle.
Whisper softly when you're near him.
Answer quickly when you hear him.
When you see his face grow tightened
By his snarling don't be frightened.
When with rage you think him choking
Remember he's quit smoking!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST
By ALINE MICHAELIS

A DAY COMES GARLANDED

So many days are but a husk
Of value all too slight;
They are no more than dawn and dusk,
Time's wings in flight.

They bear no precious, longed-for freight,
Unladen ships are they
Which through appointed hours wait
To drift away.

And then a day comes garlanded
With all fond hopes and dear,
Forgotten are drab days that fled,
Each care, each fear.

It was a day sun-drenched, wine-sweet
And sparkling as the dew,
A day of hours on dancing feet,
That brought me you!

The price of milk has been reduced again to the old tariff in force, or very nearly that amount. M. Finnerty and Sons gave notice of a reduction. Rogers Bros. last night advertised prices at $1.75 a month for pints and $3 for quarts, making twenty-five cents reduction for pints.

The council of the Board of Trade met this morning and received the report of the committee appointed to consider the water by-law, under which the council seeks power to borrow $1,500,000 to go to Sooke Lake. The report of the committee is adverse to the by-law, strongly opposing it.

That Douglas Street will eventually become one of the leading thoroughfares of the city is universally conceded. With the paving of that street, which is of such width as to add to its attractiveness, and by the installation of a modern system of lighting, there is further assurance that some of the handsomest business blocks in the city are to be erected there.

THE MAN OF MEN

To the Editor: — The history of mankind is chiefly a record of the character and exploits of the men and women who exerted the greatest social influence upon their age and nation. A nation's history is inseparably connected with the leading characters of its national life. They are makers of history, the beacon lights of civilization.

We cannot think of the empire of Babylon separate from Nebuchadnezzar, its greatest king, and Daniel, its greatest prime minister; Cyrus, Darius, Hystaspes, and Xerxes made Persian history; and the national life of Greece revolved around a small galaxy of mighty men, including Alexander the Great, Socrates and Plato. Roman history was made by a few of its generals and Caesars and statesmen, and the modern nations owe their existence and glory to a small group of national heroes. The careers and influences of earth's mighty men, however, have been short lived. Like shooting meteors they have blazed out in the darkness for a few brief moments and then burned out and disappeared in virtual oblivion.

Just as national history and national heroes are inseparable, so world history can be rightly understood and appreciated only in the light of the deeds, character, and influence of Jesus Christ. He is the Man of men, the Hero of heroes, the King of kings, the Beacon Light of all history, the great I Am of all time. He is the "Son of Man," indicating that He belongs to all mankind in every age. He is the Arbiter of individual and world destiny. True history is really "His story." Jesus Christ is the Creator, Preserver, Benefactor and Redeemer. He is the first and the last in all that is worth while, the Alpha and Omega of all that is to be desired. He alone can bring order out of chaos in individual, national or world rulership. When the governing power is placed upon His shoulders, "of the increase of His government and of peace there shall be no end."

There are not many, even among educators and statesmen, who comprehend the causes that underlie the present state of society. Those who hold the reins of government are not able to solve the problem of moral corruption, poverty, pauperism, and increasing crime. They are struggling in vain to place business operations on a more secure basis. If men would give more heed to the teachings of Jesus Christ, as found in God's Word, they would find a solution to the problems that perplex them.

ORIENTALS

To the Editor:—Referring to Mr. Connell's letter in your paper of recent date, I was surprised that he would mislead his readers by citing the exceptional case of the Greek author, Lafcadio Hearn, who eventually became a naturalized Japanese, but only after marrying a Japanese woman and assuming her name.

Mr. Connell also refers to Professors Dean and Brock. I might say if their recent utterances represent the sentiments of the University of British Columbia it is time that we made this institution an annex to the Essondale Mental Home.

The following, taken from The American Review of Reviews, November, 1907, page 622, might interest Mr. Connell:

"To his fellow-countrymen Count Okuma (the Northcliffe of the Japanese press) was still more specific. In 1907 he stated in The Tokio Economist that the Japanese were to overspread the earth like a cloud of locusts, settling on the American and Mexican coasts, and swarming into Central and South America. Count Okuma expressed a strong preference for Latin-American countries as fields for Japanese immigration, because most of them were "much easier to include within the sphere of influence of Japan in the future."

"Fifty millions of our race wherewith to conquer and possess the earth! It is indeed a glorious problem! . . . To begin with, we now have China; China is our steed! For shall we ride upon her? . . . Even as Rome rode Latium to conquer Italy, and Italy to conquer the Mediterranean; even as Napoleon rode Italy and the Rhenish states to conquer Germany, and Germany to conquer Europe; even as England to-day rides her colonies and her so-called 'allies' to conquer her robust rival, Germany—even so shall we ride China. So becomes our 50,000,000 race 500,000,000 strong; so grown our paltry hundreds of millions of gold into billions! As for America — that fatuous booby with much money and much sentiment, but no cohesion, no brains of government; stood she alone we should not need our China steed. Well did my friend speak the other day when he called her people a race of thieves with the hearts of rabbits. America, to any warrior race, is not as a fish, but as an immense melon, ripe for the cutting.

"North America alone will support Japanese with their slaves. Not arid Asia, nor worn-out Europe (which with its peculiar and quaint relics and customs should in the interests of history of culture be, in any case, preserved), not yet tropical Africa, is fit for our people. But North America, that continent so succulently green, fresh and unsullied—except for the few chattering mongrel Yankees—should have been ours by right of discovery; it shall be ours by the higher, nobler right of conquest," etc.

Since the above was published fifteen years ago, South America has been settled by Japanese, and the Hawaiian Islands also have been overrun by them until they now represent 48 per cent of the total population. At present the agen-

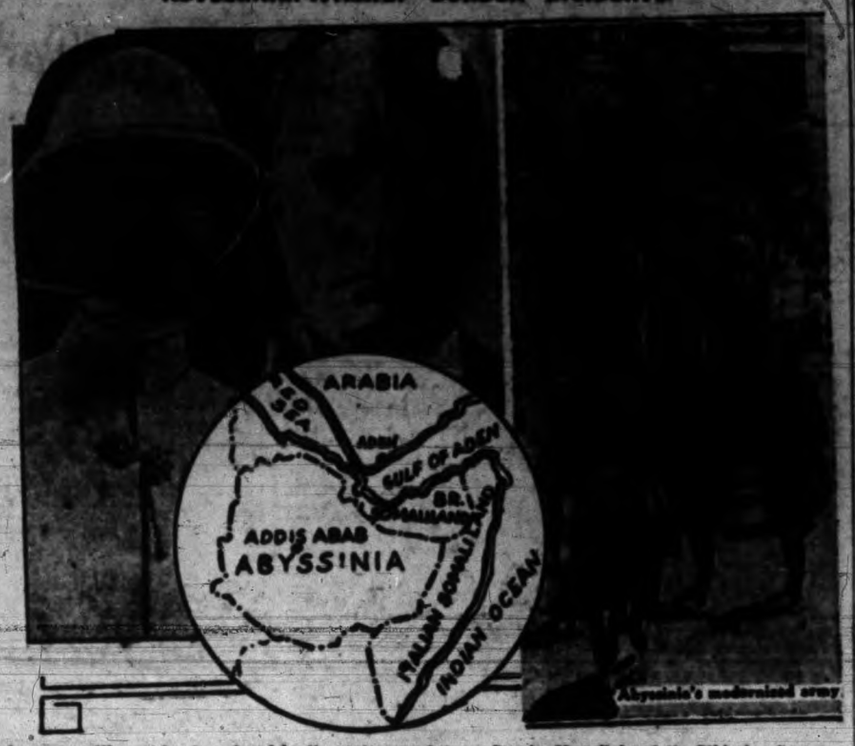
ABYSSINIAN-ITALIAN BORDER INCIDENT



Abyssinia's modernized army

As yet no settlement has been found for the controversy between Premier Mussolini and the Ethiopian Government, who are trying to saddle each other with the responsibility for a clash in which nearly 150 men were killed, and later boundary incidents. Top, left and centre, are Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia, and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Special Service For Civic Bodies

Humanity, Pictured at Border of Red Sea, Urged to Surmount Difficulties With Faith, Fidelity and Enthusiasm

Picturing humanity to-day in a position similar to that of the children of Israel when they were led by Moses to the Red Sea, Rev. Dr. T. E. Rowe yesterday urged a forward course through present difficulties, stressing the need of faith, fidelity and enthusiasm.

His sermon featured the civic service at Christ Church Cathedral, attended by Mayor Leaning, members of the City Council and school board, and civic officials. The cathedral was full for the service.

Dr. Rowe took for his text Exodus xiv 14 and 15.

Dr. Rowe recalled to the congregation the flight of the children of Israel from Egypt and their crossing of the Red Sea. There was an answer for every problem, he declared, just as in mathematics. The ultimate answer to the big problems of the day could be found if the people believed in God, he declared.

He referred to the selfishness and greed in life. It occurred in political circles, and he mentioned the building of the C.N.R. hotels in Vancouver and Saskatoon and the duplication of railway services.

ELECTORS CRITICIZED

Dr. Rowe also criticized the electors, many of whom were so wrapped up in their own affairs they did not bother to vote.

Before the people to-day lay the Red Sea, he said, characterizing materialism as that great barrier. Behind lay anarchy, communism, selfishness, greed and other undesirable forces. He urged all to go forward through the Red Sea as the children of Israel had done.

COMMON BLESSING

Held under the auspices of the Victoria Ministerial Association, the service opened with the hymn "Now Thank We All Our God."

As the people stood, Rev. Dr. A. E. Henry, president of the ministerial association, said:

"Fellow citizens, we are assembled here on this first Sunday afternoon of the year of grace 1935 with a fourfold purpose.

"To thank Almighty God for His mercies to our city in the past and for the lives and labors of those representatives and lawgivers who spend themselves in disinterested service and thereby ennoble our corporate life.

"To make solemn acknowledgment of the authority of the Most High God in our civic life and of the dignity conferred upon men as the ministers of His Will, and administrators of His Law.

"To pray for the mayor and aldermen, judges and magistrates, members of the school board and all civic officials that they may be imbued with courage, intelligence, imagination and unselfishness, and that the citizens may be joined with them in mutual service.

"To confess that we have fallen short of that righteousness which alone exalteth a nation, that often we have been preoccupied with selfish ends and to ask the Divine Forgiveness and pledge ourselves afresh to the service of God and this community."

MAYOR READS LESSON

The assembly joined in the prayer which was followed by Psalm 122: "I was glad when they said unto me we will go into the house of the Lord."

Mayor Leaning read the lesson, Exodus xiv verses 19.

Rev. G. A. Reynolds of First Baptist Church, followed with prayers, preceding the hymn "Lord of Heaven and Earth and Ocean."

Following Dr. Rowe's address, a collection was taken for the Unemployed Citizens' Recreation Rooms and Sunshine Inn.

The hymn "From Ocean Unto Ocean" followed and then the National Anthem. Dean C. E. Quainton, gave the benediction and the congregation stood as the mayor, aldermen and school trustees filed from the cathedral.

Archie McKinnon To Speak to Quad Club

"Youth and the New Leisure" will be the title of an address to be delivered before the Quad Club of the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow evening at its first session of the new year by Archie McKinnon, physical director of the "Y."

"LEEMING BOULEVARD"

To the Editor:—May I crave your indulgence in the matter of a little space for the following suggestion.

There seems to be some little difficulty in the choice of an appropriate name for the present Foul Bay Road. Suddenly there is a plethora of the name "Gonnason," but why is it necessary to delve so far into the past? The discoverers and pioneers of the island no doubt were very estimable gentlemen and it is only right and proper that their memory be given all honor, but surely the men who have guided the destinies of the city through the lean trying years are fully worthy of consideration, and I think that all will agree when I say that none more so than the present Chief Magistrate of the capital city of this province.

Were the gentleman in question called to his great reward to-morrow, you, sir, would no doubt be one of the first to view his record in laudatory obituary of which (presumably) he would know nothing. In what better way could Victoria show her appreciation of the work he is doing in this, the most difficult time in the history of our country, than by naming or renaming that beautiful old road "Leeming Boulevard."

WORLD ECONOMY

To the Editor:—Scott Nearing's lecture turned my thoughts to the problem of Asia's teeming millions and the sensation of overcrowding that haunts the traveler everywhere in the East, in the Indian valleys and the rice fields and cities of China, on the canals and even on the sea.

China presents a picture of utter hopelessness, for there one acre of good land is required for each individual, whereas only two-fifth of an acre is available. As a result, anything from two to ten million persons perish from famine every year and nearly everyone lives on the verge of starvation. The hopeless lives of Indian peasants struggling to live on a handful of rice a day, intense overpopulation causing such terrible poverty that the duration of life is less than half that of western Europe, the even greater density of population in Java, were all ignored by the speaker. Yet the insistent question arises: Who is going to supply "abundance and security" to the teeming millions of China, India and Java, numbering half the total population of the globe, and how in that event is the doubling of their number in a generation to be prevented, seeing that the cult of increase and multiplication prevails in their religions?

No one has ever been able to honestly face and solve that problem, and to ignore it is simply to build castles in the air.

The speaker's deserving reference to the "$50,000,000 royal wedding spree" was a woeful display of bad manners. He might at least have remembered that he was speaking in Canada, and that British Socialists are just as loyal as any other party. The coke was, I understand, a present from McVitie and Price of Edinburgh, and was none too large for distribution among people in all walks of life. He was also unable to grasp the fact that this throne is the greatest guest of empire, and even on a purely commercial basis pays its cost many times over, and that in any event such cost is trifling compared with the sums expended on the dog fights of American presidential elections.

His jibe at British workmen who "have been effectively taught to know their place" was misplaced and in bad taste.

The workers in Great Britain have built up their trade union and parliamentary organization to a level that has no parallel on the continent, and so obtained long ago all the benefits for which labor is vainly struggling in the United States of America to-day. His contention that Socialism could only be attained as the result of a proletarian revolution resulting from "another war," was contrary to the creed of the C.C.F., under whose auspices the meeting was held.

To the question put to him whether he considered Socialism could be attained in Great Britain by use of the vote if the majority desired it, he replied that such methods would be insufficient.

His doctrine was frankly the Marxian Communist dogma of the class struggle and revolution, of salvation by hate. The fact that in western nations like Hungary, Italy, Germany and Finland such attempts ended in Fascism or military dictatorships, does not disturb the apocalyptic visions of the fanatics who cling to this typically German religion of force, but its futility does explain why Communism has not a single representative in the American, British and Canadian legislative assemblies, and why in the recent municipal elections in Great Britain, where Socialism made such striking gains, not a single Communist was returned. There is not the remotest prospect of a war in any of these countries, still less of a successful proletarian revolution resulting from it, and to rely on any such prospect for the realization of a sound economic system is only to resort once again to dreams of a millenium and revolutionary Utopias. One has only to hear Henderson and Nearing to realize why the workers' cause has advanced so rapidly in Great Britain and the Scandanavian countries, and why it lags behind in the United States of America.

Two facts at any rate are indisputable: Firstly, that the advocacy by any member of the C.C.F. of the class war and proletarian revolution is a repudiation of the platform and creed of his party and the endorsation of the creed of our bitter opponents the Communists; and, secondly, that the failure of any C.C.F. candidate at the forthcoming federal election to openly and frankly repudiate such doctrine will result in the loss of the support of thousands in Victoria who, like myself, support, and always will support, our honored leader, Mr. Connell, but will have nothing to do with traitors in the party who preach the doctrines of hate and the Communist manifesto.

A. E. SAUNDERS.

Weddings

SIMPSON—ROSS

Vancouver, Jan. 7.—The first wedding of the New Year to take place at St. Andrew's-Wesley Church was solemnized Tuesday afternoon when Margaret Ruth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ross of this city, became the bride of Mr. Gordon Hunter Simpson, youngest son of Mrs. Shirleigh Simpson and the late George Simpson of Victoria, Dr. Willard Brewing officiating.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left for the east, and upon their return will reside in Vancouver.

PENGALLY—McGAW

At 8 o'clock on Friday evening, Jan. 4, Rev. J. S. Patterson united in marriage Miss Jenny McGaw youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. McGaw, 2616 Douglas Street, and Mr. Garfield Pengally, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Pengally, North Salt Spring Island. For the occasion the bride chose a navy blue crepe de Chine dress, fashioned on fitted lines and hat of navy blue with veil. She wore a corsage of pink roses, white and mauve sweet peas and fern.

A small reception was held at the home of the bride; parents where the families and close friends gathered to extend best wishes to the newly-weds. Mrs. A. Ward, sister of the bride, assisted in receiving the guests.

DENNIS—TRUAX

Of much interest to the bride's many Victoria friends was the wedding solemnized at Agassiz, B.C., on Monday afternoon, December 31, at 2 p.m., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Truax, when Viola May, eldest daughter, became the bride of Mr. Robert H. Dennis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Dennis, all of Agassiz.

Against a background of evergreens and white roses and streamers, the youthful bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in an imported model of green French crepe, modelled with a high neckline and puffed velvet surrounding the dropped shoulders. She carried a small shirred velvet muff and bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bride was attended by Miss Patricia Healey of Victoria, attired in brown taffeta embroidered in gold leaves and she carried a sheaf of white flowers. The groom was supported by Mr. George Bay of Victoria. After the wedding supper, to which only members of the immediate families were present, the happy couple left to spend a short honeymoon on Vancouver Island.

The bride traveled in wine crepe with a green flecked wool coat with wolf collar. Her accessories were black. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis will make their home in Agassiz.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

STIMULATE—DON'T DISCOURAGE —FLOW OF BREAST MILK

Whatever disadvantages some individual breast milk may possess, it is baby's natural food and nothing which can be concocted in imitation of it has the same peculiar merits. For this reason it is deplorable when a very young baby has to be weaned from the breast.

Even when the baby is not thriving as one would expect, it is easier to add to the nutrition, by the use of complementary formulas, than to thrust the baby on a food as strange, and sometimes as indigestible, as is the milk of other animals.

MILK SUPPLY FAILS

Mrs. D. P. has become discouraged by the changes in formula suggested for her baby. "I never have any milk for my babies after the first week. Now my seven pound, fifteen ounce baby is on her second formula. She thrived while I nursed her, but now she has only gained two ounces in a week.

"Her formula is seven ounces of evaporated milk, thirteen of boiled water and two tablespoons of corn syrup. This goes into seven bottles. She vomits a great deal and cries as if she were hungry. The doctor tells me the amount is sufficient and she may overcome the vomiting.

LACK OF VITAMIN C

"I wish I could nurse her. I have been told she will get used to this formula. How about buttermilk, is that easier to digest? I get so much help from your column."

Your formula is a good one. But it lacks some type of vitamin C, which is essential with a processed or boiled milk formula. You can add two tablespoons of lemon juice to your formula, or give one ounce of sweet orange juice daily, in two ounces of water, dividing this into two portions and giving one at 9 a.m. and the other at 3 p.m.

The vomiting might be helped by fewer feeding periods, the same amount of milk and corn syrup and enough water to make feedings of three or four ounces.

STIMULATE BREASTS

It is not unusual for a baby to fail to gain on a new formula, but she should be comfortable and not vomiting. Might a tight binder be responsible for this?

Buttermilk because of its lactic acid content is easier to digest. You may use lactic acid with your present formula. Our leaflet on, "Lactic Acid Feedings," may be had for the usual self addressed and stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, care of the Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

You might be able to renew the breast milk by putting the baby to both breasts regularly every four hours, hoping that the stimulation might again start the flow. Feed by bottle after the nursing.

WARM TRIBUTE TO REST HAVEN

Residents of District Present Address and Gifts to Dr. Burden and Staff

On Wednesday a delightful evening was spent at Rest Haven when a large number of friends from Sidney and North Saanich gathered there for the purpose of presenting the faculty with a surprise shower of vases, books and linen, on recognition of the community service rendered by Dr. H. E. Burden and his colleagues.

The large lounge room with its beautiful Christmas decorations made an ideal setting for the presentation, which was arranged by the committee in charge, Mrs. B. Deacon, Mrs. Stanley Brethour and Mrs. Philip E. Brethour.

The evening commenced with a concert, the items including a piano solo by Mrs. Lisle and solos by Mr. Toomer, Mrs. Fraser and Mr. Lisle, all receiving well-merited applause and several encores being given. The accompanists were Mrs. Lisle, Mrs. T. M. Hughes and Mrs. Godfrey.

A tableau was given by six children, Helen Brethour, Oriole Grundon, Dorothy Hall, Russell Munro, Barry Hall and Gordon France, drawing in a wagon with the vases arranged upon it being led by Enid Sisson, who was the first baby born in Rest Haven, singing the carol "A Happy New Year to All." Mrs. Philip Brethour accompanied the young singers.

In the centre of the vases was a lovely basket of dried flowers, surmounted with plumes of pampas grass. These were followed by four tables of gifts carried in by some of the gentlemen present, and Mrs. Stanly Brethour, Mrs. Deacon and Laurine McNeil recited very beautifully a poem composed specially for Rest Haven, entitled "Rest Haven, the Isle of the Sea," the audience testifying their approval by warm applause. Mrs. Deacon, as convener of the committee, then asked Dr. Burden, Mrs. M. Courser, superintendent of nurses, and Mr. Shepard, manager of Rest Haven, to come forward, and she presented the gifts, explaining the purpose of the shower as an appreciation of their wonderful service to all with whom they were in any way connected and then read a beautifully framed illuminated address, which Enid Sisson then presented to Dr. Burden. Oriole Grundon, Helen Brethour and Russell Munro presenting to each of the three recipients of the gifts a copy of the address. Dorothy Hall then presented Mrs. Courser with a beautiful basket of flowers.

Dr. Burden in accepting the gifts and returning thanks, said that more even than the gifts he valued the thoughtfulness of the givers, as it showed how kindly they regarded Rest Haven. Mrs. Courser and Mr. Shepard also voiced their thanks with a few appropriate words.

The chairman, J. J. White, spoke a few words on Rest Haven and called for a hearty vote of thanks to the committee who had arranged such a splendid affair. Mrs. Deacon responding, said what a pleasure it had been and very easy, as the whole district was glad to be able to express their appreciation of Rest Haven and especially of Dr. Burden.

The guests later adjourned to the dining-room where a pleasant social hour was spent and light refreshments enjoyed.

The address read in part as follows:

"We, the residents of Sidney and North Saanich, desire to express our deep appreciation and fervent thanks for the excellent work which you are doing in our community. We consider that Rest Haven is a very valuable asset to the district, both as a hospital of a very high order, and as a striking example of Christian living.

"We specially wish to thank Dr. Burden for his unfailing courtesy, patience, gentleness and kindly sympathy given to all those who come under his care, and also for his immediate response to outside calls. We also thank Mrs. Courser and her staff of nurses for the loving services bestowed upon their patients in their efforts to ease their sufferings.

"We thank Mr. Shepard for the splendid social service rendered by the fine concerts and lectures given, to which the residents of North Saanich are always cordially invited."

SUNSHINE INN YEAR'S WORK

Over 70,000 Free Meals in Last Twelve Months

The value of Sunshine Inn to the needy of Victoria is again emphasized in the annual report covering the year 1934, which has just been prepared by the founder, Capt. Burgess Gadsden.

The report shows that 70,869 free meals were provided in the last twelve months compared with 78,565 meals in the same period of 1933 and 118,-306 during the twelve months represented by 1932.

After January, 1934, a steady decline in the application for meals commenced until in June the average had reached the lowest number that it had been for two years.

From July 1 to October 31 the inn provided for but one meal daily, the afternoon meal, which permitted children to receive the same benefit that they had received during school days. At the same time arrangements were made with certain eating houses whereby a breakfast was provided to all necessary cases upon an order from the manager of Sunshine Inn.

LOSS OF $180

The funds of the inn, while showing a surplus of approximately $180 for December, will show a loss of about $180 for the whole twelve months of 1934. The books will be audited by a well known chartered accountant as has been the annual custom.

"It is the wish of the directors administering this endeavor," says Capt. Gadsden, "to join with me in very graceful appreciation for all the support and help that has been given during the three-year period that Sunshine Inn has been in operation."

Sunshine Inn had originally planned on having a special dinner on Christmas Day, the report states, but due to the Gyro Club's hamper project and the dinner in the Chamber of Commerce, it was thought wiser to defer the special dinner until New Year's Day, which arrangement proved more beneficial.

Meal cards were issued for a first and a second sitting, so that there would be no confusion and 188 persons, including thirty-seven girls and twenty-four boys, were provided with a fine New Year's dinner, consisting of turkey and stuffing, with cranberry sauce, brussels sprouts, turnips, carrots, parsnips, cabbage, potatoes and brown gravy, bread and butter, plum pudding and vanilla sauce.

A. E. Norris volunteered his service to carve eleven turkeys, which weighed approximately 180 pounds, and were beautifully roasted.

H. D. Davis assisted the regular cook with the extra cooking, and his service proved very valuable in the preparation of the meal.

The lady volunteers conducted the serving of the meal in the usual style, and the dinner commenced at 3 p.m., was finished at 4.30 and was pronounced a success and highly appreciated.

The following names of individuals and firms were instrumental in providing this special event: Turkey, the Kiwanis Club, Cross Marketerie, Major Watt and Mrs. Allan Morkill; sausage, W. Williams and Son; cutlery, the Pacific Club; tobacco, E. A. Morris and Company, W. J. Clubb and Mr. McMillan; apples and oranges, Native Sons of Canada, D. Spencer Limited and Mr. and Mrs. Monteith; candy, etc., Vancouver Drug, Terry's, Kresge, Woolworth, Metropolitan, Stevenson, Hudson's Bay and Spencer Limited; presents for children, Teddy Slingsby and George Gregory, who provided sixty handkerchiefs, individually wrapped, for each boy and girl.

POSTMEN ARE KIDDIES' HOSTS

About 150 Guests at Annual Christmas Party Saturday Evening

The young guests and their parents arrived about 3 p.m., and games were in order until 5 o'clock. At this hour supper was served in the large dining hall, to which 150 sat down. An excellent entertainment preceded the visit of Santa Claus, who arrived about 9 p.m. The hall was then given over to dancing until midnight. During the evening G. H. Gardiner, the local postmaster, briefly reviewed the past year in postal circles, and struck an optimistic note for 1935.

The arrangements were in the hands of a committee from the local branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, consisting of E. Paver (chairman), W. Cave, P. Luff, F. Hurry, W. Knott and F. Walker, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was accorded, for the excellent arrangements made.

The enjoyable programme was well received by the large gathering. Mr. Lavery's Harmonica Rascals Band gave several selections, their rendering of "Grandfather's Clock" being worthy of special mention.

Miss Jeanie Pollock received great applause for her dances, "Irish Jig" and "Sailors' Hornpipe," for the latter of which she received the highest points in the recent competition. Agnes and Evelyn Finn caused roars of laughter with the "specialty dance," and were recalled for an encore.

Other items on the programme included: Dorothy Finn, songs; O. Little, recitation; Lois Russel, song and dance; Dad White, old-time violin music. Rev. E. M. Willis showed a variety of moving pictures, which delighted young and old alike. Miss E. Dawson acted as accompanist.

The tombola winners were: 1, E. Tucker; 2, H. Smith; 3, W. Craigmyle; 4, J. Eddy; 5, G. H. Gardiner; 6, R. Standewick; 7, T. Kay.

ATTRACTIVE SHOULDERS BACK UP YOUR BEAUTY

The regular use of a bath brush on the shoulders helps keep them in good condition against the occasions for wearing delicate dresses

By ALICIA HART

The woman who is anxious to look particularly well in evening clothes should give her back, shoulders and arms a daily beauty treatment. She can't care for them in haphazard manner day after day, give them a thorough going-over the night of a party and expect to look as expertly groomed as the girl who uses bath brush and body lotions every night of her life.

A long-handled bath brush is undoubtedly the greatest boon to back and shoulder beauty. You should use it each time you take a bath, whether tub or shower. Get one with fairly flexible bristles that won't scratch tender skin, but which are strong enough to stimulate circulation and cleanse the pores. Always rinse carefully.

When you have finished your bath and dried with a rough towel (also good for circulation), apply a body oil or lotion to shoulders, arms and back. There are excellent ones on the market to-day and a large bottle lasts a long time.

If, from time to time, small blemishes appear on your back, better pay stricter attention to your diet. Maybe you're eating too many sweets and fats. Perhaps you aren't drinking enough water or getting the right amount of exercise. Try to regulate your health habits for a few weeks. Then, if the pimples still show, see a doctor.

NINETY-THREE YEARS ON FARM

Mrs. Elizabeth Gokey of New York State 108 Years Old

Dickinson, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Elizabeth Gokey, almost hidden by blankets, looks back across more than a century of experiences, ninety-three years of which were on the same farm near here.

Mrs. Gokey was 108 years old yesterday. Many members of her family of five generations are here for the birthday celebration.

During the long winter months of the north country, Mrs. Gokey stays in bed. "life has been good to me," she said to-day. "Sometimes it has been hard but things are always for the best."

The old lady, who was married when she was fifteen, never has seen a moving picture or heard a radio, but she does not regret not having done so. A few years ago she saw her first airplane.

Mrs. Gokey was born at Rouses Point near here in 1827. Her father, Berthelme Larcau lived to be 116 years old. She married Joseph Gokey at La Colle, Quebec.

What One Girl Wore

By BETTY BROWNLEE

Ideal for midwinter wear is this smart two-piece wool frock in contrasting shades of brown and mustard yellow. The skirt is of heavy wool and the jacket is knitted

For these midwinter days there is nothing so practical as the wool or jersey frock. Whether for sports wear or everyday street wear this type of dress is really a necessity.

Both the one-piece and the two-piece wools and jerseys are popular this season, and their color combinations and contrasts are gay and attractive.

In the case of the one-piece frocks, colors are usually solid with contrast provided in a cravat, the belt or general accessories. When the dresses are of the two-piece type the skirt and blouse are in vividly contrasting shades.

To-day we illustrate a particularly smart frock of knit wool which is ideal for either street or sports wear. The skirt is of heavy dark brown wool and the knit jacket is of mustard yellow. The brown cravat is the same shade as the skirt.

Frocks of this type have achieved a really distinct tailleur this season as will be observed in the cut of this skirt. The centre seam down the front and the interestingly placed patch pockets lend a smartness which hitherto has been found only in the dressier suits.

The jacket, too, is cut along the most tailored of lines as will be noted from its squared shoulder line, neat pockets and tight-fitting sleeves. The waistline, too, is tight-fitting and the molded hipline gives this frock that smart appearance achieved only in snug-fitting clothes.

Brown accessories should be worn with the frock, and the same accessories would be used with a different shade of jacket.

Serial Story
Blonde Goddess
By HERBERT JENSEN

They retraced their steps until they came to the spot where they had camped the night before. The sun had swung up into the sky. Their little valley was becoming as humid as a hothouse. Wraithes of vapor, sucked upward from the damp ground, fingered the rank vegetation. Frank glanced anxiously at the girl by his side.

"Feel like resting, Janice?"

They picked their way southward. Finally they reached the lower end of the stream. As it had at the other end of the little valley here again the current swirled into the maw of cavern under the face of that queerly concave cliff. Frank said thoughtfully.

"And no way to get out of here in this direction." He glanced backward up the stream. The current flowed around a rocky promontory two hundred yards distant. The trunk of a palm lay across the stream at that point.

Frank pointed to it. "We've just about been around the valley—except for that lower side there that's hidden by the little hill. Let's cross at that fallen palm and take a look. If we're blocked there . . ."

Janice met his glance fearlessly. "If we're blocked there," she prompted. "Then what?"

Frank shrugged. "Oh, we'll get out," he replied with a heartiness he did not feel.

They made their way to the palm log. Frank straddled the natural bridge and hitched himself across. The log gave somewhat under his weight. He reached the farther bank. He called to Janice to follow.

But the girl was standing and staring intently at the trunk of the fallen palm.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

To Frank on the opposite side of the stream it seemed that it took almost a physical effort for Janice to turn her eyes toward him. She put her foot upon the log and ran lightly across.

"You might have slipped," remonstrated Frank as she stood beside him. Her glance met his. "What is it?" he said with quick concern. Her face held a curious expression.

"That stump, Frank. That tree was chopped down, or gnawed."

"Are you sure?"

At her nod he stepped past the withered leaves of the palm top and made the passage back to the other side.

He examined the ends of the stump and log. Janice was right. They looked as if they had been cut by man with an incredibly dull axe.

Frank rejoined the girl. His expression was thoughtful.

He said, "Let's go on." He did not tell her that he had noticed another and more disturbing thing. A faint trail led away from the tree trunk through the soft ground. Jungle grass grew fast. The path was faint but discernible. That meant that the trail was being used at present!

They skirted the base of the small hill keeping within a few yards of the stream's edge. Suddenly Frank, ahead of the girl stopped. He sniffed the air.

"I smell smoke," said Janice. "There must be people nearby. Oh Frank, perhaps—"

She brushed past him. "It's coming from over there. I see it now!" She began running. It was then that Frank realized that they were on a trail, doubtless the continuation of the one he'd seen on the other side of the palm-trunk bridge.

He called out, "Stop, Janice! Wait! They may be—"

He saw the running girl halt suddenly. She gave a short scream and recoiled. Frank snapped out his machete and leaped forward.

The path had given way to a small clearing. A grass, thatched-roof hut stood on the farther side. There was a small pipe of rocks in the middle of which a fire burned. But lying beside the fire, his jet eyes gleaming coldly on either side of his beaked nose, was the figure of the ahkin, high priest of the bloody cult of the Bat!

* * *

Janice whirled and ran down the back trail. For a moment Frank stood hesitating, swinging his machete, and staring at the eyes of living hate that burned in the dark face of the priest. The man's head dress was gone. His feathered ornamentation clung to him in damp bedragglement. The grisly hide of skin lay half over his extended legs. Despite his wrecked costume, the man's murderous fanaticism clad him like a garment.

Frank heard Janice call from a distance. Warily he backed away. The ahkin made no move to follow. He lay, hating Frank with his eyes.

He joined his companion at the stream's edge. She admitted, with nervous apology, that she'd lost her head.

"His eyes!" she exclaimed with a shudder. "They were like poison!" She put her hand to her heart. "I seemed to feel his glance here! Let's go back to our camp."

They hurried, stumbling through the vague trail they'd hacked that morning. Frank was busy with his thoughts. How had the ahkin survived that terrible fall? How had he come to this isolated spot.

A vague explanation was pressing into his consciousness—a reason remote and incredible. That stream, sliding swiftly through this little sunken valley—could it be that the pool of the cenote beneath the pyramid connected with this valley?

Was this valley just another elongated cenote—through which the stream ran too swiftly to dam into a pool? That would mean that this valley was a freak formation of nature—that the underground river, gnawing its way through the limestone had finally undermined its arched roof and caused the ground above to fall into the cavern below.

No wonder that the cliffs bounding the little valley were concave and showed no face up which they might climb to the upper level. Frank followed close upon Janice's heels. He kept his machete bared in his hand.

They burst through the matted growth of vegetation into the grove of palm trees where their fire still smouldered. The girl uttered a sharp exclamation and stopped suddenly.

A dim figure seemed to drift into the brush beyond the fire. Almost it seemed that it was shaped from the fire's smoke. Frank leaped forward. It was no figure of smoke.

He heard the crash of shrubbery—the sound of a heavy body breasting the tangle.

He saw the bushes waving ahead of him. Plunging through in pursuit, Frank raised the heavy blade of his machete. [illegible] this were the ahkin, come by some secret trail to molest them, he was going to have a settlement now. To wait until dark would be suicidal with that maniac loose.

He leaped a fallen log. Brush crackled ahead. Shrubbery tops waved; he caught a brief glimpse of a human hand raised to pull aside a bough.

Frank lunged. He heard a startled cry. The hand appeared again clenched about the handle of a club tipped with stone.

His machete flashed up.

He chopped it forward. It clanged upon stone; his arm was numbed with the shock. A bough switching backward caught him across the eyes. The pain blinded him.

Human hands clawed at his throat. He reached forward and his arms encircled a body. He felt garments tear as he sought to tighten his hold. The creature—he could not see it—writhed and flopped in his grip.

A fist beat at his face and he tightened his arms. He felt a bearded face crushed against his own. He put up his hand and clamped it under the hairy chin.

"Damn you! You murdering——" His antagonist relaxed. Almost he fell forward upon him so sudden was the tactic. He opened his smarting eyes. A blond-bearded wild face opposed his own. Vivid blue eyes, wide with a fantastic amazement gleamed above the bronzed cheekbones. The bearded lips parted in an astonished, unbelieving smile.

"Frank Grahame!" the man exclaimed. "Frank—"

Frank muttered, "Billy Langton!" He brought up his free hand and passed the fingers through his hair.

The other said, "Take your paw off my throat, you hoodlum."

Frank dropped his hands to his side. Langton swayed, and would have fallen but for Frank's instantly supporting arm. The man leaned against a tree trunk, breathing heavily and looking unutterably weary.

"I'm sort of weak," he explained quietly. His smile flashed again. "And what brings you here, stranger? You always were a fool for busting in places . . . I might have brained you with that swipe I took." He glanced at the ground. "Ah . . . . here it is. That club of mine is no plaything." He coughed. "Hello, you old jackass."

CHILDREN DISLIKE BEING PATRONIZED

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children are serious people. They do funny things but seldom intend to be funny. I speak mostly here of little children, of course. Humor does become more deliberate as they grow older.

But many people do not realize this and adopt a bantering tone toward the small fry. Probably it is because grown-ups don't know how to take them, are really afraid of them, and try to get into their good graces by kidding or other artificial methods.

A little girl of four said to the milkman: "What's your name?" Now his name was Mr. Reed. All he had to do was to say, "Mr. Reed." But he winked at her mother and answered, "It's Apple Blumstein."

HIS PUZZLING JOKE

He had to repeat it several times, but finally she got it. After that she always called him Mr. Blumstein and wondered why he always roared and laughed.

These little episodes are not very serious in themselves, but in the course of a single day probably a dozen other folk speak to Patsy with a chuckle, as though she were a joke. They either tease her or get her to commit herself so they can laugh.

Mr. Smith sees small Herman making snowballs. He stops and says soberly, "You are wasting snow. Who told you you could waste snow like that? You'd better go and ask your mama."

Mermy doesn't go and ask his mother. He doesn't quite know what "waste" means. But Mr. Smith was pretty serious, and the small workman feels that something must be wrong. After a bit he stops mussing up the snow in the yard and goes in. The affair is soon forgotten, but for a long time afterward he never touches the snow in the yard without a queer feeling that it isn't quite right someway. A minute of fun for Mr. Smith—and many minutes of discomfort for the little boy.

PATRONIZING ALWAYS APPARENT

Another thing grown-ups do unconsciously is to patronize. And patronage is ever apparent in the tone of voice.

"Well, well, well," says Miss Jones. "So you know how to ride a bicycle. Isn't that just simply lovely. My, I wish I had a bicycle like that. You are certainly a great big man, aren't you?"

She means so well and it is nice of her to stop and admire Johnny's new steed and his prowess, too. Perhaps he doesn't notice her voice and effusion, but he can't help feeling that he is just a very little boy being talked down to by a great big lady. Will it build up his pride if all the people he knows speak to him this way?

BILLIE CAN'T EXPLAIN

"What is the matter with Billie? He used to be so friendly, but goes right past me and never speaks any more," says a neighbor.

No one knows, and all Billie will say is that he doesn't like Mrs. So-and-So. He can't explain that she teases him, or makes him feel uncomfortable, or talks to him in a high falsetto that puts him definitely in his place. His disapproval will be instinctive rather than analytical.

How sensible it is to talk to children as though they were human beings. I often wonder if they don't have many a secret laugh at our expense, or feel sorry for us.

GEORGE SANGSTER OF OTTAWA DIES

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—One of the veterans of the trade union movement in Canada, George Sangster, for many years Canadian general representative and organizer of the Trainmen' International Union, died here Saturday, aged seventy-six. He began life as a tailor, one of the old-fashioned craftsmen who sat cross-legged at work.

In paying tribute to him, Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, said:

"George Sangster was one of the most ardent workers Canadian labor has ever had. He never wavered from his principles. He always kept his card and was one of the old brigade if there ever was one."

DRIVER OF AUTO HELD FOR TRIAL

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 7.—James A. Henderson, thirty-seven, faced hearing here to-day on a manslaughter charge. He was arrested during the week-end following the death of Walter D. Steele, sixty-one, fatally injured when struck by an auto. Mr. Steele was president of the Steele Briggs Company, seed firm.

Henderson was released on $15,000 bail. Coroner M. M. Crawford investigated the circumstances surrounding Mr. Steele's death. Police said Henderson, in an effort to avoid striking another car, drove his auto over the curb, hitting Mr. Steele and his brother.

NO WONDER HE FELT AND LOOKED SO MUCH BETTER

Half in fun and half because he occasionally "felt punk", a college chap joined 39 other students to form a test class or clinic. It was desired to test on this class the recuperative power of a certain tonic preparation, the formula of which was known to have blood-building qualities.

Like the other 39, this young man's blood was tested and the "count" of red corpuscles and red colouring matter was found well below normal. No wonder he "felt punk" at times. He was given the tonic and returned in thirty days to have his blood tested again. There was no doubt about improved health. He looked it and felt it. His blood test showed that red corpuscles and red colouring matter had strikingly increased. No wonder he felt and looked so much better.

Would you like to feel better, too? Would you like to be keen again about study or work or play? Then take this "tested tonic" which proved such a benefit to the forty college students. It restores well-being by increasing the red corpuscles and red colouring matter of the blood—those carriers in the blood stream which must be kept up to normal numbers if the person is to possess health and vitality. This tested tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Easy to take whether at home, at college or at business. Recommended for all who feel run-down, over-tired, nervous or "low", or are under-weight. Your druggist has this tested tonic—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, price 50c. 82G

Luxton

The Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute held its ninth annual meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Hankin January 3, with Mrs. H. A. Baxter in the chair. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. F. Hutchinson. The directors' report was also read, showing a successful year's work. The financial report was presented, showing a satisfactory balance. The president thanked members and directors for co-operation during the year. Mrs. B. Brown took the chair during the election of officers, the following being selected: Mrs. Ramsfield, president; Mrs. W. Heath, vice-president; Mrs. A. Hankin, Mrs. A. Radcliff and Mrs. L. Hutchinson, directors; and Mrs. F. Hutchinson, re-elected secretary. An interesting letter was read from a "home-makers' club in Kentucky, giving an outline of their work and asking the secretary to give an idea of the work of the local branch institute. Arrangements were made for a community card party to be held at Luxton Hall Monday, January 14, in aid of the playground fund.

Your family's Income DOUBLED!

until the youngest child becomes of age

IMPERIAL DOUBLE INCOME POLICY is new and unusual

HERE is a remarkable plan of Life Insurance for the man with young children. It relieves him of a great anxiety—that of providing a sufficient income for the growing family until they are self-supporting.

The Imperial Double Income Policy provides in the event of the policy holder's death, while his children are young, that there will be paid to the family until the youngest child reaches a self-supporting age an income equal to 12% of the face value of the policy.

A $10,000 Policy on this Plan would provide $100 per month ($1,200 a year) during the income period and then pay $10,000 in cash to your beneficiary—perhaps your widow—as a nest egg for her old age.

You see how unusual this is—twice as much income is guaranteed as a similar amount of money could provide under any other plan—and the principal sum is left intact.

Post-holiday Slump Not Felt So Severely as in Former Years, Report Shows

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—Canada's business continued generally satisfactory this week and the customary post-holiday slump was not felt as severely as in former years, it was indicated in the weekly report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association issued here yesterday.

Wholesale trade, particularly, it was shown, continued "very good" in most centres and retail sales held up well. Some improvement over the same week of last year was reported from several points and business men looked forward optimistically to the coming year.

One of the largest decreases in weekly business failures during the week was reported, bankruptcies totaling twenty-three to the forty-seven in the same week of last year.

Halifax — Wholesale trade better than a year ago. Retail business retarded by weather conditions. Collections fair to slow.

Montreal — Wholesale trade in groceries reported very good. Retail city merchants continue to report excellent trading. Country merchants also report a very satisfactory week. Wholesale collections still slow; retail continue to show a slight improvement.

Toronto—Exchanges of goods are the order of the day in retail establishments. Business is looking for an increased turnover in 1935, and optimism is the rule. Collections fair.

Winnipeg—Wholesale trade generally maintaining a fairly satisfactory volume in practically all lines and outlook for 1935 appears to be encouraging. Retail trade somewhat quiet. Collections fair to slow.

Wholesale trade in groceries shows a slight decrease from last week; dry goods trade fair; hardware fair. Both city and country merchants report the usual lull after the holiday season. Wholesale collections on current accounts o.k.; retail city, fair, to slow; country, poor.

Saskatoon—Wholesale grocery sales satisfactory; hardware sales exceedingly good during the past week or two; footwear lines considerably improved; dry goods sales good. Sales in oils and greases reduced. Both city and country retail trade somewhat quiet after the holiday buying. Current collections still remain very satisfactory; nothing being paid on old accounts.

Calgary—Volume in retail and wholesale groceries continues to be on a satisfactory level. All other lines showing signs of improving, reports generally being of an optimistic nature. Collections fair.

Edmonton—Wholesale trade generally holding up satisfactorily; country retail trade has slowed up owing to severe cold weather; city retail trade good. Collections, both current and past due, fair to good.

Vancouver—Wholesale and retail trades report the usual after holiday quietness. However, an exceptionally good season's business has been done and wholesalers generally advise that the outlook is bright for a good trade during the rest of the winter and spring.

LOOSE ENDS

But if you were to try to force them to do it, they would instantly rebel. Let Mr. Bennett, under his inspired new programme of national reform, order all women to paint and powder and instantly the country would suffer a scourge of shiny noses and dull, colorless lips. That is the kind of high-spirited women we have in this country.

When you are forced to drive your women into mill-idiotisms as they are doing in Russia, there must be something seriously wrong with your system. And who wants to live in a country where the women have to be compelled by law, have to be liquidated, before they will make themselves presentable? But let the poor misguided Communists beware. Once they unloose the power of woman's natural acquisitiveness upon the revolution, it won't last long. No girl who can get her hands on a powder puff and lipstick is going to stand for communal ownership. She won't share her victim with anyone.

GEM

THE OFFICIAL report of the late lamented naval conference in London has just come to hand. It is a gem of English composition and shows you how our noble language can be made to say nothing with more words than any other language on earth. After the conference this statement was given out:

"Although the three governments represented in these conversations are in favor of the continuance of naval limitation, with such reduction as can be agreed upon by all the powers, the principles and methods for achieving this in the future remain to be determined."

No historian will doubt, if he relies on the official record, that the conference was a complete success. All that remained to be determined were the principles and methods. That is all. But what a beautiful and bellicose way of announcing that the conference had been a total flop. I have seen nothing more beautiful and mellifluous except, perhaps, Premier Bennett's explanation of why he has become a radical on the eve of an election.

TRADE INDEX SETS RECORD

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—Capping previous records for two years back in the last two weeks of December the weekly economic index maintained by the Dominion Bureau of statistics reflected decided betterment of Canadian economic conditions at the year end, the Bureau says in its weekly review issued yesterday.

The index is based on six factors and is expressed as a percentage of the weekly average for the year 1926. In the week ending December 29 it stood at 92.4, unchanged from the previous week, but showing a gain of 22 per cent over the level of 69.9 for the same week in 1933.

The economic index averaged more than 15 per cent higher in 1934 than in the preceding year. The average level during 1934 was 84.5, compared with 73.0 in 1933.

The index of car loadings in the fifty-first week was 15 per cent greater than in 1933. The wholesale price index average during the first eleven months of the year was nearly 7 per cent greater than in the preceding year.

High-grade bonds reached in the last three weeks of 1934 a new maximum for many years.

The common stocks weekly index averaged 30.5 per cent higher in 1934 than in the preceding year. Bank clearings at the thirty-two centres of Canada recorded a gain of 54 per cent over 1933.

ROTARIANS READY FOR BIG SHOW TO-NIGHT

In the above picture are shown Sam Winterbottom, Douglas Parks, Thomas Kelway (interlocutor), Frank Shandley and Jack Trace, a few of the principals in the Rotary Club's "Stop and Go" revue and minstrel show which opens at the Royal Victoria Theatre to-night. When the box office opened Friday for the allocation of seats, evidence of public interest was unmistakable. Not for many years has the Rotary Club attempted to stage a production on such a pretentious scale. For weeks Saturdays and many of the city's leading artists, have been rehearsing, and, now that the show is ready for its presentation, it is gratifying for them to know that there will be a big response by the public and two bumper houses. The show offers two amusing types of entertainment, a revue with a cast of sixty-five under the direction of Reginald H. Hinche and a minstrel circle of forty-five under the direction of Thomas Kelway, who also takes the important role of interlocutor. Proceeds of the show are in aid of the Rotary Club's

Helen Hayes to Be Starred Here

"What Every Woman Knows," Helen Hayes's latest starring picture which will open to-morrow at the Dominion Theatre, is a triumphant return for the star after a year's absence from the screen.

After one of the most successful seasons in the history of the New York stage in "Mary of Scotland," Miss Hayes came back to Hollywood for the immortal role of Maggie in Sir James Barrie's famous romance, and has reached new emotional heights.

Maggie's efforts to win a husband, although often declared to be a "woman with no charm," provide a strong theme for the plot. After she wins a man through a marriage contract, her life is devoted to building his success and guarding the happiness she has won through much difficulty.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The Assistance League of Los Angeles, an organization sponsored by leading women of southern California, reaps a large revenue for charity through co-operation with the motion picture studios.

Securing certain "locations" has been entrusted to the women of the league. Often studios require a fine home with spacious lawn. Studios pay the league for securing these, and in most cases the wealthy people who donate their homes for such use permit the league to take all the revenue.

An unusually fine home, with large lawn space and flower gardens, was required for the new Shirley Temple Fox Film production, "Bright Eyes," which is showing at the Capitol Theatre to-day, with James Dunn in the cast. The ladies of the Assistance League found among their patrons Earl G. von Platen and his family, who live in one of the finest estates of Pasadena's Millionaires' Drive section. In the rear is a garden embracing a number of acres and filled with rare flowers and shrubs. The place was ideal for such a picture as "Bright Eyes."

FAMOUS STORY AT PLAYHOUSE

Stevenson's "Treasure Island" Main Feature; John Boles in Second Picture

Creating a "composite picture" of the mental impressions of more than 100,000,000 people was the startling directorial task that confronted Victor Fleming, who directed "Treasure Island," adventure classic based on Robert Louis Stevenson's famous book—the most widely read pirate story ever written. The picture comes to-day to the Playhouse Theatre.

"This responsibility to the vast number of readers estimated by publishers to have been thrilled by Stevenson's book has resulted in the strictest care in every phase of production for the picture," declared Fleming, director of such adventure films as "Bombayana," "Around the World in Eighty Minutes" and "Red Dust."

Shipman Concert At Empress Jan. 14

The third concert of the Shipman New Deal series will offer a unique attraction in the form of a quartette of women's voices in a varied and interesting programme.

It will commence with Bach's beautiful "Come, Thou, O Come," and "Break Forth, O Beautiful Heavenly Light," and a group of old English numbers, through a programme of Schubert, Brahms and Grieg, to finish with a group of popular modern numbers.

This concert will be presented at the Shrine Hall on Monday, January 14, at 8.30 o'clock.

Where To Go To-night

As Advertised

Columbia—William Powell in "The Key."

Playhouse—"Treasure Island," starring Jackie Cooper.

Crystal Garden—Swimming.

Columbia Stars William Powell

William Powell's latest stellar vehicle for Warner Bros., "The Key," which comes to the Columbia Theatre to-day, is said to be the most thrillingly dramatic production in which that star has yet appeared.

The play by R. Gore-Browne and J. L. Hardy, on which the picture is based, carried an abundance of thrills, set as it was in the background of Dublin during the last decade, when Irish patriots had aroused the country to flaming revolt.

The plot carries an unusual love triangle in which two British officers, engaged in the suppression of the rebellion, battle for the love of a woman who is the wife of one, but had been the sweetheart of the other.

In addition, there was a loan of $5,000 by J. H. Todd and Sons, made in 1929, to build a house. There was no default in taxes on the property, however, Alexis Martin, counsel for the school, said he did not oppose the application. Once Proposed For B.C. Board

Trio Now Controlling Municipal Department Have Long Connection

Appointment last week of E. H. Bridgman as deputy inspector of municipal affairs, brought to light an interesting piece of history in connection with municipal administration in this province.

In 1919 the late Hon. John Oliver, then Premier, proposed to set up a Municipal and Utility Commission along the lines of Ontario. This was modified in caucus to a utility commission, presided over by Major J. L. Retallack.

Mr. Oliver's proposal called for a personnel on his municipal board of Robert Baird, then inspector of municipalities; A. Wells Gray, then mayor of New Westminster, and E. H. Bridgman, then mayor of North Vancouver.

Now, fifteen years later, these three men have charge of the municipal department of the province, Mr. Gray as minister, Mr. Baird as deputy minister and inspector, and Mr. Bridgman as deputy inspector.

AID SOCIETY MAKES APPEAL

Children's Aid in Need of $2,000 to Complete Coming Year's Work

A public appeal for $2,000 to carry on the work of the Children's Aid Society during 1935 is being made by the directors of the society this month.

The organization's funds are reported as being completely exhausted now and owing to the deserving cause to which the society devotes its efforts, the directors feel confident their appeal will meet with generous response.

Contributions will be gratefully acknowledged by the treasurer, Arthur E. Mallett, at Dun & Bradstreet's office, 625 Fort Street.

An announcement on behalf of the society points out it is now functioning actively in the preventive field; that is to say it is endeavoring to overcome the causes of neglect and to make their own home environment suitable for children. Whenever possible this is being done instead of getting the children made wards of the society, which means relieving the parents of their proper responsibility and throwing a heavy financial burden upon the municipality concerned. Conditions sometimes require permanent removal of the children from their surroundings as the only course, but in every case which is reported to the society, the fullest inquiry is made into the causes of the neglect and every consideration given to possible ways of correcting the bad conditions. This means a great deal of skilled and delicate work and often temporary placement of children in one of the society's approved boarding homes; but it has proved to be worth while and satisfactory results have been obtained. The cost of maintenance of wards is provided for by statute, but the preventive work is supported entirely by voluntary subscriptions.

RETIRES AFTER LONG SERVICE

James M. Murray of H. O. Kirkham, Ltd., Receives Presentation From Staff

James M. Murray, of 3172 Balfour Street, who has concluded twenty years' service with the firm of H. O. Kirkham Limited, has been forced to retire owing to ill-health. On the eve of his departure he was presented with a gold watch and chain by the firm and staff, indicating the high regard in which he is held.

Prior to joining H. O. Kirkham Limited, Mr. Murray was manager for the People's Cash Grocery, but when H. O. Kirkham Limited bought the business, he transferred his activities to the purchasing firm. The proprietors left him to manage the People's Cash Grocery for some time.

It was in 1920 that Mr. Murray took over the management of the H. O. Kirkham Limited store on Fort Street, becoming at that time a shareholder in the business.

H. A. Bishop has purchased Mr. Murray's holdings in the company, and will become actively engaged in the business.

The aldermen will be using a new seating system when they gather tonight. New desks have been constructed for the council chamber in such a manner that all aldermen will be sitting in a semi-circle around the mayor.

A feature of this evening's meeting will be Mayor Leeming's inaugural address.

School Board To Meet Wednesday

Victoria's new 1935 school board will hold its first meeting of the year under the chairmanship of W. C. Moresby, K.C., on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

Preliminary estimates for the coming year will probably be considered and accounts for 1934 will be cleared away. Merchants with accounts outstanding are requested to send in their bills before the meeting.

With the school children returning to their classes to-day after the Christmas vacation, nothing of importance in staffs or curricula is expected to be considered.

Designer Of Buildings Dead

Thos. Hooper Was Architect For Metropolitan Church and Other Structures

Thomas Hooper, one of British Columbia's best known architects, passed away in Vancouver last week. As designer of the Metropolitan Church and other important buildings in Victoria, Mr. Hooper was well known here.

C. Elwood Watkins, local architect, was articled to Mr. Hooper in 1906, was with him during the building of the Metropolitan Church and entered into partnership with him in 1910, being associated with him for a number of years.

Other notable structures designed by Mr. Hooper in Victoria were the Centennial Church, George Jay School, Humboldt Street extension to the St. Joseph's Hospital and the addition to the St. Ann's Academy.

While in practice here Mr. Hooper maintained an office in Vancouver and designed in the Terminal City the Spencer Building on Cordova Street, the Winch Building adjoining the Vancouver Post Office, and the addition to the Vancouver Courthouse.

INDUSTRIES SUGGESTED

Minor Undertakings to Alleviate Island Unemployment Considered By Chamber

Development of several minor industries on Vancouver Island, which may grow into major undertakings, but for the time being would serve to alleviate the unemployment problem, is suggested in a report presented by a special committee to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon to-day.

The suggestions were made by Major Ian St. Clair and compiled in report form after a committee of seven members of the chamber had discussed them with him and inquired into their feasibility. The committee consisted of Charles H. French, chairman; J. O. Cameron, Duncan MacBride, Fred M. McGregor, A. W. McIntyre, W. D. Todd and J. C. MacFarlane.

Outstanding among the suggestions is one for the distillation and aromatizing of cascara bark, which is easily produced on Vancouver Island.

Major St. Clair pointed out to the committee that at present Orientals and Indians on the island were felling cascara trees in order to get the bark, or ringing the tree and completely destroying it. The bark was sold at about seven cents a pound and taken to the United States where it was prepared and reimported into Canada at an approximate cost of twenty-five cents a pound.

CONSIDER PROBLEMS

In connection with this industry the main problems to be considered are: prohibition of the felling of trees, erection of a distillation and aromatizing plant on Vancouver Island, and limitation of the exportation of the bark. The committee felt the question of preservation should be taken up with the provincial government through the Department of Agriculture. During the discussion it was brought out that other medicinal plants might be cultivated on the island and as the majority of these would require hand labor, unemployment might be materially aided.

Development of the trapping industry by the unemployed was also suggested. It was noted that the Hudson's Bay Company paid $1.50 for muskrat pelts and the trapping of them would relieve the farmers of a farm pest.

Another plan was for the manufacture of commercial activated carbon. Major St. Clair said Vancouver Island possessed the finest woods for the making of such a product which could be refined and moulded in the city.

Dehydrating plants for the drying of small fruits and vegetables were also suggested. This market, it was explained, would be wholly an export one, as there was no domestic call for such commodities at present.

The teaching of pioneer mining to the unemployed was also favored.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Among other suggestions offered by Major St. Clair were encouraging of the resin and turpentine industry; making of knees for boat-building, high-class furniture, etc.; making of short-length lumber and crate lumber from slabs, waste, etc.; manufacture briquettes and fire-lighters from sawdust; small plants for canning jams, fruits and vegetables; packing of fish and shell-fish; smoking and desiccating of fish and dry saltery for herring; extraction of iodine from seaweed; fertilizer from seaweed, shell deposits and waste.

The report was accompanied by a specially prepared treatise on cascara growing and other medicinal plants on the island. This dealt with the trees which might be cultivated and the products which might be derived from them.

The 11th Divisional Baggage Company, C.A.S.C., will parade at the Armories, Bay Street, to-morrow night at 8 o'clock, to carry on with the schedule laid down. The drive will be drill order. Recruits will be interviewed at this parade.

Empress Hotel Work Planned

C.P.R. Hotel Chiefs Discuss Maintenance Operations in Conference Here

Under the heading of maintenance work, repairs and improvements running to a considerable expenditure, will shortly be undertaken at the Empress Hotel, as well as other hotels of the Canadian Pacific system, it was reported here to-day.

Painting and general repairs will form the major part of the work in contemplation and this will be carried out during the spring months of this year.

Matters pertaining to hotel administration on the Coast were taken up this morning by H. F. Mathews, general manager, Canadian Pacific Hotels, Montreal, in conference with officials who crossed from the mainland by the night boat to meet the C.P.R. hotel chief here.

A. E. Robertson, assistant general manager, Canadian Pacific hotels, Winnipeg, and T. H. Chester, manager of the Hotel Vancouver, were closeted with Mr. Mathews at the Empress throughout the forenoon.

The presence of Mr. Chester here is an indication that some maintenance work also is contemplated at the Hotel Vancouver.

A. E. Mussin, of the engineering department, and W. J. Mylett, of the catering department, are also in the city to-day from Vancouver.

Mr. Mathews who has been visiting here for several weeks in the interests of his health, plans to leave with Mrs. Mathews towards the latter part of the week for Montreal.

WOULD SURVEY OLD BUILDINGS

Removal of Dilapidated City-owned Structures Suggested

Presumably the preliminary step towards a big clean-up which may remove unsightly old houses from city-owned land, the public works committee to-day filed a report for the consideration of the City Council asking for a complete survey of the dilapidated buildings on city property.

"That officials of the City Health Department and the City Land Department be instructed to make a complete survey and thorough inspection of all city-owned buildings and submit a report thereon to the City Council with a view to the renovation or removal of all unsightly, unsanitary and dilapidated buildings."

In various sections of the city many old properties have reverted to the corporation. Without private interests caring for their upkeep, they have rapidly fallen into a state of dilapidation which mars the general appearance of the city.

Among the buildings are several houses, some of which have been allowed to stand because they furnish some shelter for people who would otherwise be entirely without.

It is expected the city will be lenient in consideration of such cases, but will most probably approve the removal of such other buildings which cannot be put into a reasonably good state of repair.

TAX SYSTEM IS UNJUST

Public Opinion Must Force Change in It, Mayor Leeming Tells Gyro Club

"We are carrying on under a most unjust system of taxation. To pay the bills of a man out of a job or one who has to enter a mental home, the government says to the man who owns property 'you will pay the bill.' This system is not going to be corrected until public opinion forces it," said Mayor Leeming in reviewing civic conditions before members of the Gyro Club at luncheon to-day at the Empress Hotel.

"This method of taxation has got to be changed if we are going to survive," Mr. Leeming said. "On account of this system of taxation people are abandoning their property in the city of Victoria. People are leaving us—leaving the town in which they are making their living, and we are drying up like an apple."

At the end of last year, Mr. Leeming stated, the city took over from the taxpayers 300 vacant lots, thirty-two properties with dwellings, worth $1,500 each, and several other more expensive properties. These reached a total of $207,000, and were taken "from owners who had struggled to keep them until that time." This property now belonged to the other taxpayers of the city, the mayor said. It was wrested from its original owners by the present system of taxation.

POLICE AND FIRE

The mayor said the city could not be run any more economically than at the present time. The police force, which now cost $160,000, could not be reduced any further, he said. If the fire department was cut down the citizens would pay for it by increased fire insurance rates. The basic rate on dwellings in Victoria, he said, was the lowest in Canada. The fire department here cost $150,000 a year.

The library, which was operated under a provincial act, cost $61,000. Social services were the greatest drain. In 1924 they cost the city of Victoria the sum of $272,000, an increase of $202,000 over what they cost in 1920.

"Every dollar of this was forced on us by act of parliament," the mayor said. "These are figures over which we have no control. After these things are paid it leaves the city Council only $400,000 on which to operate."

Mr. Leeming referred briefly to the proposed tourist scheme, urging the Gyros to do their part in making it a success.

"We have lost all our industries in the past," Mayor Leeming said, "because we are not economically situated. The Victoria business man is as good as any other business man, and probably better, because he has integrity. The tourist industry is the only industry that cannot be taken from us, and it can only be developed by determination, enthusiasm and money. Don't be afraid to put up a few dollars. In this way we can probably, in time, bring back our land values."

Len Woodhouse, president of the club, who presided, introduced Mayor Leeming and thanked him for his address. He also congratulated Gyro Archie Wills on his recent election to the aldermanic board.

WANT CITY ON MAIN HOOK-UP

Victoria as Western End of Radio Network Advocated By Chamber Directors

Action by Victoria organizations directed towards having a western link with the Canadian National radio hook-up instituted here, was proposed by speakers at the Chamber of Commerce directors' luncheon in Spencer's dining-room to-day.

George McGregor spoke first on the question and thought Victoria should have a broadcasting centre in order that local interests might hear the national programmes without interference from foreign stations. It was a shame also, he said, that Victorians had to listen to British Empire broadcasts over foreign networks.

J. H. Fletcher pointed out that Greater Victoria contributed approximately $25,000 a year to the radio commission and had practically nothing to show for it. He felt this money might be well devoted towards putting Victoria on the national chain.

R. T. Williams Will Again Before Court

R. T. Williams's hand-written will was up again to-day before Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson of the Supreme Court, when J. Percival Walls, who as counsel is asking for probate, reported he had carried out researches as advised last week by the justice and had found authorities that "cured" the irregularities discovered in the former alderman's last testament.

One of the faults pointed to was that Mr. Williams had put the date under his signature. Mr. Walls quoted authorities, and said it was clear the requirements of the statute had been complied with.

The justice told Mr. Walls he need not worry about the placing of the date as the will could be perfectly good without a date.

The justice said what was required now were affidavits from the two witnesses to the will, and as soon as they were obtained he would hand down a ruling for the registrar.

Mr. Walls said he would secure the affidavits.

Justice Counsels Newest Lawyer

Russell Kemp Baker of Vancouver is B.C.'s newest lawyer. He was called to the Bar and admitted as a solicitor before Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson in the Supreme Court here to-day. The introduction to the court was made by Lindley Crease, K.C., dean of the local bar, who referred to Mr. Baker's career at the University of B.C., and the fact that he is entering into partnership in Vancouver with Douglas McNeill, who was called to the bar here last July.

Mr. Justice Robertson said no doubt the Benchers had drawn the new lawyer's attention to the code of ethics of the profession in Canada.

"It is vital that members of the profession should observe these rules so they may stand high in the estimation of the people of the country," the justice said. He added that never in the history of the country was this more important than now. He declared that so long as the public believed in Canadian legal institutions so long will things in Canada continue in a quiet way, but so soon as they become suspicious of the administration of the law then there would be danger ahead.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

TOMMY ARMY, local golfer and billiard player, has received an interesting letter from Scotland telling of the honors that fell on a championship golfer. It relates to the dinner of his thirteen-year-old niece, Nancy Jupp, in winning the women's championship at Stoke Poges. Her mother was hailed as a great feat. It is also an interesting fact that her sister, Rhoda, was a runner-up for the championship and at one stage of the competition an excited gallery figured on the possibilities of two sisters fighting it out for the title.

* * *

Says the letter which Tom received from East Lothian, "everyone seemed to go daft over it all. The whole of the British Isles was talking about it and we were swamped with letters of congratulation. Our home town of Longniddy was wonderful the evening we came home. All of East Lothian came out to meet her and they carried her shoulder high through the village with a pipe band in the lead. Everyone met outside the house, including the Earl of Wymss and his home party. She was presented with flowers, laurel wreaths and chocolates, a gold watch from club members presented by the earl, and made a life member of the club. The night she won we stayed at the Piccadilly, and when we went into the dining-room the band struck up 'The Conquering Hero,' and everyone cheered and we had a glorious evening."

If you took a little gamecock weighing a scant 120 pounds sopping wet, put about forty pounds of hockey paraphernalia and impedimenta on his spare frame, and then saw him turn into the outstanding goal tender in the National Hockey League, you'd be surprised. That's just why Little Roy Worters, New York Americans's goalie and king of the loop's puck stoppers, is such a surprising little fellow. "Shrimp," as the boys affectionately call the five foot three inch wonder, has been hailed as head man since the unfortunate death of Charley Gardiner, goal tender of the champion Chicago Black Hawks last season.

* * *

Two of hockey's outstanding figures have spouted to great length on the attributes of the mite — and they aren't his bosses, either. One is the grey-thatched Lex Patrick, manager and coach of the New York Rangers, rival big league hockey outfit in Gotham Town. "The perfect goalie," Lex arises to remark, "must have a perfect pair of eyes, a fine sense of timing, must be quick, agile, and alert, a fine skater, and must have a great pair of hands. Roy Worters has all of these attributes, and that's the reason he's the standout goalie in the league."

* * *

Col. John S. Hammond, president of the New York Rangers, is another who is on Worters's side of the fence. "Give us Roy, and we would be leading the league," he recently remarked. "He is the best goal tender in the business, and with him in the net we wouldn't have half as many goals scored against us." Worters is thirty-four now, but he doesn't seem to slow down with age; rather, he is getting better.

* * *

He came up from his native Toronto in 1926 to join the Pittsburgh Pirates. While with that club, in 1928-29, he was awarded the Dr. David A. Hart Trophy as the most valuable player to his team in the league. Two years later he received the George Vezina Trophy as the league's outstanding goal tender while playing with the Americans. He is the only player in the league to receive these two awards. Worters's work at the net is all the more outstanding when it is considered that the Americans' defence has been riddled by injuries this year. Bill Brydge was out with an injured knee for a while, and Red Dutton, playing with three broken ribs, couldn't give the mite as much assistance as he was capable of.

* * *

A hockey goalie is just about the busiest man on the rink, despite the fact his job doesn't call for all that skating around the rink which other players are required to perform. But what a beating a guardian of the net takes! Worters is held together by more than twenty-five stitches the medicos have taken in his body. These big, burly forwards have no regard for life and limb when they speed goalward with that hard puck under control, and it's up to the goalie to get his head out of the way and some padded part of his body in when it comes whizzing through the air. Some idea of a goalie's harried existence can be had in the cuts little Worters made during the first half of the 1932-33 series. In those sixteen games the puck came flashing up at him 679 times, and he stopped it 669 times, allowing an average of one goal a game.

Former Defeat Americans and Increase Lead

Howie Morenz In Fine Performance

Usually National Hockey League teams are glad to take a win and a loss and be grateful when they find themselves down for two games on successive nights over the week-end. Not so Clem Loughlin's Chicago Black Hawks. They see the opportunity of picking up points in a hurry and want nothing but two wins.

Over this week-end the world champions beat both Boston Bruins and New York Americans and bounded from second place in the American section standings to the leadership and a three-point advantage over Bruins. After whipping Frank Patrick's team 6 to 0 in Boston Saturday, they took on Americans in New York yesterday evening and won, 2 to 1.

For Montreal Canadiens, the other team forced to play two games, it was another story. Riddled by injuries, they bowed to Leafs, 3 to 1, in Toronto Saturday, and then took a 6 to 2 lacing from Red Wings in Detroit yesterday.

MORENZ OUTSTANDING

Howie Morenz' outstanding ability as a playmaker showed in both the Hawk wins. He gave assists on two goals at Boston, and did the same against Americans. Lorne Chabot got his fifth shutout of the season against Bruins, joining Tiny Thompson, Boston, the only goalie in the league to reach that stage previously.

Hawks rapped in one goal in the opening period, four in the second and one in the third at Boston. Paul Thompson and Mush March each got two, and Art Coulter and Louis Trudel the others. They played before 15,000 persons, largest crowd of the season in Boston.

Morenz and Johnny Gottselig combined with March for Hawks' first counter at New York, and when Eddie Burke tied it up in the third period Morenz worked with Gottselig for the winning counter.

Canadiens not only lost their game to Leafs but were deprived of the services of Sylvio Mantha, their veteran defence ace, who received an eye-injury and was forced to retire early in the third. He did not play at Detroit. With Mantha Habitants had held Leafs scoreless but when he went off Art Jackson broke through the weakened defence for a goal and Charlie Conacher and Bill Thoms got others. Armand Mondou saved Canadiens from a shutout.

WEAK DEFENCE

Canadiens had only Leo Bourgeault, Gordon Savage and Jerry Carson at defencemen at Detroit, and their protection was not enough to save Wilf Cude from the withering barrage Wings laid down. After they got five goals in five minutes of the first period there was no hope for the Habitants.

The Roche Brothers, Desse and Earl, Tip Foster and Johnny Sorrell each got one goal for Wings, and Larry Aurie two. Pete Lepine scored both Canadiens' counters.

It ended a five-game winning streak the Germanites had built up. Glen Brydson opened the scoring in the second period on a passing play with Carl Voss and Syd Howe, and Bob Gracie evened things up in the third while Jerry Shannon was serving a penalty. Maroon's efforts to get the winning goal proved their undoing when Bill Cowley caught four of them down the ice and beat Alex Connell.

ST. SAVIOURS BEAT NANAIMO

Score 5 to 0 Win in Intercity League Soccer; Islanders Finish With Six Men

Vancouver, Jan. 7.—St. Saviour's registered their first victory of the season by defeating Nanaimo City, 5 to 0, in Saturday's Inter-City League soccer match here.

Play was fairly even in the first half. Ernie Bradbury opened the scoring when he shot through from Cawker's corner kick. Two minutes before the interval, Edmunds fouled E. Bradbury in the penalty area and both players were sent off when they started a strong argument on the field. St. Saviour's were awarded a penalty but Hunter's shot was saved by McLaren.

TWO SOFT GOALS

Just after play was resumed in the second half McLaren misjudged a high lob from West and George Bradbury walked the ball into the net. McLaren then fumbled a shot from J. Moffat and Bradbury headed through for another goal.

West dribbled past the Islanders' defence and crossed the ball for Cawker to head it into the net for the Saints' fourth counter. Shortly after O. Bradbury missed an open net from ten yards out with no goalie to beat.

Headley and Wallace Wind-up Training For Fight Tomorrow Evening

Vancouver, Jan. 7.—Only forty-eight hours away from their twelve-round battle which will decide one of the finalists in the battle for the Canadian welterweight boxing crown, Ben Headley, Ottawa and Gordon Wallace, of Vancouver, dropped vigorous training yesterday as they tapered off for to-morrow night's fight.

Both boys contented themselves with light roadwork and shadow boxing and bag punching in the gym yesterday evening. Headley was still an even money choice to stop the conqueror of Billy Townsend and put the future title fight on an all-eastern basis. The rugged Ottawan tipped the scales at 148 yesterday but was unconcerned over the extra pound over the welter limit.

Sammy McManus Is Sent to New Haven

Montreal, Jan. 7.—Sammy McManus, left winger of Montreal Maroons who was recalled from Windsor Bull Dogs recently but not went due to a knee injury, has recovered and has been sent to New Haven Eagles of the Canadian-American Hockey League on option. Manager Tommy Gorman of the National Hockey League club announced yesterday. McManus left yesterday for his new club. He was a member of last year's Stanley Cup Champion Maroons.

Maxie Baer Gives Johnston Earful

Heavyweight Champion Accuses New York Promoter of Ruining Boxing Game; Declares Madison Square Garden Boss Is Afraid to Let Him Fight Double-header

Detroit, Jan. 7.—The Detroit Free Press said yesterday the breach between Max Baer and the Madison Square Garden Corporation had become as wide "as the Grand Canyon" as the result of a wordy battle between the heavyweight champion and James Jay Johnston, boxing manager of the Garden, when they met here Friday night before Baer's bout.

The Free Press said the argument started when Johnston and Joe Jacobs entered Baer's dressing-room to extend congratulations for drawing a big house.

"Yeh," Max questioned. "And you say I'm not doing anything to help the fight game. I gave the fight game the greatest boost it has received since Dempsey's time when I knocked out Levinsky at Chicago.

BUSINESS GAME

"You are the one who is ruining the fight game. You go around knocking everybody and everything. You're the smart guy."

"You don't want me to fight a double header with Lasky and Haines," he shouted. "Why? Because you're afraid I'll knock Lasky into your lap.

"Listen, Jimmy. You may have the fighters, the officials and the politicians on your side. But you don't have them."

He held up his tape-swathed fists. "I have these and I'll use them to beat the living daylights out of every fighter you have tied up."

WANDERERS AND COLLEGIANS WIN

Wanderers Blues stretched their string of victories into the second half on Saturday as they whipped an improved Canadian Scottish team 4 to 0 at Oak Bay Park. The Whites took the measure of the Glentoran 8 to 0 at Work Point, and the College beat the Fifth Brigade 3 to 0 at Admirals Road. All games marked the opening of the second half in the intermediate league.

Although they fielded but eleven men, Wanderers Whites were too strong for the inexperienced Garrison squad. B. Murdoch and Yates each scored tries for the Whites, and Briggs converted the latter's score. Billy Spatt, Garrison half, went over for the soldiers' lone tally and Watson added the extra points.

NELSON HAS QUIT HOCKEY

Withdraw From West Kootenay League When Players Declared Ineligible

Nelson, Jan. 7.—Nelson Maple Leafs, senior entry in the West Kootenay Hockey League, which embraces Trail, Rossland and Kimberley has torn up the hockey ghost for the season and it is freely stated among Nelson Hockey officials that hockey is a thing of the past for Nelson. Refusal of A. E. Gilroy of Portage La Prairie, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, to allow Alfred Carr, Winnipeg, and A. Pilous, former Selkirk player, to play in Nelson uniforms this season led to the withdrawal of the Nelson club.

The two players came to Nelson late this season, but like several going to the Maritimes, were barred from play. Gilroy further declaring that any players donning skates against them would likewise be barred.

PLAYERS SUSPENDED

Telegraph and telephone wires have been burning for several days between Nelson and Portage and between Trail and Portage, but Gilroy on Friday ruled that the players were suspended and could not play even in exhibition games until passed upon at the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A., which is next March.

Nelson is the pivotal point between Rossland and Kimberley and with the two players the management was able to field a team to compete with Trail and Kimberley in league games. Without the players the management has decided it would be financial suicide to carry on.

Trail, Jan. 7. — Following withdrawal of Nelson seniors from the West Kootenay Hockey League other clubs in the league yesterday took a vote and decided to stay with the C.A.H.A. They regretted the passing of Nelson from the league. Immediate steps were taken to draw up a new schedule.

Toronto to Hold Pro Ball Team

Present at the meeting were manager Ike Boone, of the Toronto club, and manager Larry MacPhail, of the Cincinnati Reds.

BLUE RIBBONS WIN IN WALK

Turn Back Multnomah Athletic Club 33 to 17 in Intercity Basketball

Another highly-touted United States basketball team, the Multnomah Athletic Club squad of Portland, came to town on Saturday, and the Blue Ribbons took them in their stride 33 to 17 in an exhibition game at the Victoria High School gym. Outside of seeing the local stars turns in one of their best exhibitions this season the large crowd of fans witnessed little excitement, the visitors being outclassed from start to finish.

In the two preliminary fixtures Pantorium girls proved far too good for the Standard Steam Laundry, and won 42 to 21, and the Regents accounted for the Fernwood Merchants, 39 to 23.

Ray Smith and his Portland teammates brought along a fine reputation and nothing more. And when they failed to get anywhere against the smart playing of the Ribbons the visitors started to squawk at the decisions of the referees. Needless to say their objections got them nowhere.

SHARE SCORING HONORS

With Art Chapman and Doug Paton leading the local scoring parade with twelve points apiece, the Ribbons played championship basketball. The former, just about completely recovered from his head injury, performed in great fashion. Owing to the lack of competition for the Ribbons the game was anything but thrilling and so it result the spectators got little to be worked up about.

The first quarter ended with the Ribbons leading 13 to 6 after the Multnomah cagers had twice taken the lead in the opening few minutes. Half-time arrived with the tea and coffee boys in front 21 to 16. In the third quarter neither team did a great deal of scoring, and at the three-quarter mark the score stood Blue Ribbons 29, Multnomah 14. The fourth and final period saw the Ribbons add eleven points and the visitors three.

Tommy Manzo and Alan Le Marquand referred.

Standard Steam Laundry—S. Scott (4), I. Crawford (14), D. Sowwell, W. Prior (2), H. Anderson, V. Holt, F. McDonald and V. Green (1).

Pantorium — Mary Paton (4), E. Bernard, P. Sparks (27), M. Wilson (15), G. Taylor (1), R. Bethel (4), E. Trotter (1), P. Carney and F. Stubbs.

Regents — Noakes (12), McAdam, Chambers (2), Fleming (14), Kirk (7) and Minnie (4).

Ribbons — C. Chapman (12), McKechnie, Andrews (1), Martin (2), Paton (12), Craig (1), A. Chapman (12), Plummer, Hudson and Wallis.

BELANGER WINS

Double Hat-trick In Soccer Match

Allan Shields Is Out With Injuries

Montreal, Jan. 7.—Allan Shields, ex-Ottawa defenceman, is lost to Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League for the next two weeks, said Bill Mosienko has been recalled from Windsor, Ont., Bull Dogs of the International League to take his place. Manager Tommy Gorman stated yesterday evening.

Drop Kick Puts Anderson Down

Herb Parks Gains Sensational Win Over Popular Seattle Matman

The spectacular drop kick which has given new life to wrestling was featured again in the main event at the Tillicum gym Saturday night by Herb Parks of Vancouver, to send Ben Anderson of Seattle to the cleaners.

For two rounds the popular Seattle man seemed to have things very much his own way against the game Vancouver matman. With his shoulder bottle he got a fall in the first. There was plenty of action and the crowd was thrilled. In the third round Parks went out to finish it. He sprang into the air and landed both feet on Anderson to smash the Seattle man to the floor as often as he could rise. With Anderson groggy and dazed Parks landed a flying tackle and the Seattle man went out.

Anderson was advised by the doctor to forget the other rounds and call it a day but insisted on starting again. He got as far as the centre of the ring and collapsed.

WRESTLE TO DRAW

Young Tarman of Edmonton and Earl Martin of Philadelphia wrestled to a draw in the semi-windup. Tarman won with a body slam after throwing Martin all around the ring in the third. In the fifth Martin put on a Japanese leglock which made Tarman tap the mat.

Bill Steen beat Vic Hay and Reg Hopkins beat Al Garnot in the local preliminaries.

Decision Wednesday On Canadiens' Sale

Detroit, Jan. 7.—Leo Dandurand, manager and part owner of Canadiens' hockey club, said here yesterday evening he would have nothing to say "until Wednesday" in regard to the possible sale of the club owned by Joe Cattarinich and Dandurand.

The manager of the Montreal club said he was flying to New York on Wednesday to confer with a prospective purchasing group, the identity of which he declined to reveal.

Renwick and Lyon Each Pull Feat as Albions Rovers Whip Ayr United 8 to 0 in Scottish League; English League First Division Standings Tighten Up

Canadian Press

Glasgow, Jan. 7.—Once again the champion Glasgow Rangers are in undisputed possession of first place in the Scottish Football League. The Rangers beat Dundee 3 to 1 at Ibrox Park Saturday while Hamilton Academicals, Rangers' nearest rivals, the champions on points, were taken 3 to 2 to defeat from Falkirk on their own grounds.

The biggest upset in a day of upsets was the defeat of the mighty Hearts by the lowly Dunfermline eleven, by a score 1 to 0, on the Hearts' own field. Until recently Dunfermline, promoted from the second division, was resting in the cellar.

Rangers now have a full game margin over Celtic and Hamilton, with Hearts in fourth place another point behind and St. Johnstone and Aberdeen sharing fifth place.

Saturday was a day of shocks, outstanding the defeat of Hearts and Hamilton by clubs struggling to escape relegation to the second division next season. Hamilton lost to Falkirk by 3 to 1.

SCOTCH TEAM

Rangers used McAuley at outside right, but he was not a success, and it was not until he exchanged places with Venters that Rangers struck their stride. Robertson scored for Dundee, Gillick equalizing in the second half. Venters put the champions in the lead and McAuley scored the third goal on a penalty shot.

Falkirk played surprisingly good football at Hamilton, even if they were a trifle lucky to get full points. Keyes, whom Falkirk secured only on Friday from Morton, scored the winning goal. It was Hamilton's first defeat of the season.

A surprise goal by Robson in the first half, and a desperate defence, enabled Dunfermline to beat the Hearts at Tynecastle. It was Hearts' first defeat of the season. For almost all the second half the homesters battered the Fifers' defence, but they could not get the tying goal.

LUCKY TO WIN

Celtic were lucky to defeat St. Johnstone and get in second place. McGrory scored the only goal of the game, but McDonald was the Celts' outstanding player. Aberdeen had plenty to spare in their defeat of the Hibs by a 2 to 0 score. Mills and Armstrong did the sharpshooting. Albion Rovers had a field day at the expense of Ayr United, winning 8 to 0. Renwick and Lyon each pulled the hat trick, and Barclay got the other two.

Clyde scored an easy win over the tail-end St. Mirren club, 5 to 2, Robertson scoring twice and Carroll, Douglas and Hope one each. For St. Mirren, McKenzie scored, and Wood, Clyde, put the ball through his own net.

Kilmarnock and Airdrieonians fought an even draw at Hampden Park, in which no goals were scored. The showing of both teams was below standard.

Ogilvie scored for Motherwell against Queen's Park, and the Fir Parkers looked set for a victory, but Taylor equalized in the second half. Queen of South lost 4 to 2 to Partick Thistle.

London, Jan. 7.—Despite the fact they were held to a soporific draw at Roker Park by the Wolves, Sunderland still leads the first division of the English Football League. But the mighty Arsenal, champions of the league, scored a 2 to 0 victory at Liverpool and went into a tie for second place with Manchester City, only a point behind the leaders.

A crowd of 69,000 turned out to see the Arsenal-Liverpool game. Drake scored within two minutes of the start from Bowden's pass. The second goal came when Hoppwood took a penalty kick after Drake was fouled, and through he missed Hoppwood heading in the rebound.

POOR GAME

It was a poor game at Roker Park. Sunderland had the wind advantage in the first half and did most of the attacking but could not score. Both sides showed improvement after the interval, but almost sure goals for both the Wolves and Sunderland struck the woodwork.

The play was in striking contrast at Hillsboro, where the Wednesday beat Manchester City by the only goal of the game. Both teams played sparkling football.

Stoke City and Birmingham played a scoreless draw on the latter's grounds, the single point leaving Stoke City in fifth position. Birmingham played Divine at inside left, after getting him from Queen's Park Rangers the day before.

Brentford climbed up into a tie with Bolton Wanderers for leadership of the second division, by beating Newcastle United 2 to 0, while the Wanderers were losing 3 to 1 at Bury.

Hopkins scored for Brentford and Fletcher managed to score two more goals for the Bombers.

IN THIRD PLACE

CUNNINGHAM IN VICTORY

World Record Holder of Mile Beats Gene Venzke in 800-Metre Event

New York, Jan. 7.—The redoubtable Glen Cunningham was launched on his 1935 track campaign to-day with a convincing victory for his first effort of the year.

The Rhodes-limbed Kansas University middle distance king ran the feet off half a dozen rivals in the 800-metre invitation run which featured the ninth annual indoor track and field meet of the Columbus Council, K. of C., in a Brooklyn Armory Saturday night.

With the din of 3,000 fans ringing in his ears, and the thudding feet of Gene Venzke, United States three-quarter-mile record holder, menacing his triumph, Cunningham summoned a fine burst of speed in a race that was a thriller from the outset. He led the wearer of Pennsylvania's red and blue to the tape by the scant margin of a yard and a half in 2 minutes 57 seconds.

In the third position, six yards back was Bill Ray, Manhattan College star.

More Spirited Race In American League

President Will Harridge Predicts Detroit Tigers Will Have Tough Time Repeating Major Baseball Victory; New York Will Be Dangerous Threat

By WILL HARRIDGE
President, American Baseball League

Chicago, Jan. 7. — They say even a weather man hits it right in his predictions now and then. I certainly sympathize with him. For three years I predicted a close race in the American League, and I finally made good in 1933, when Cleveland, New York and Detroit took turns in leading, with Detroit finally clinching the pennant six days before the campaign came to a close.

Having had American League clubs help me out in my forecast of a year ago, I see no reason for not predicting at this time that we will have an even more spirited contest for the championship in 1935.

Detroit may experience more difficulty in capturing the flag than it did in 1934. The Tigers won their laurels because of the catching and magnetism of Manager Cochrane and the team's immunity from injuries. They played heads-up baseball from start to finish, and Cochrane expects them to repeat.

NEW YORK STRONG

New York will be a strong contender again. Possibly, if Combs and Dickey had not been injured last season, the battle would not have been decided until the very last day. No club can afford to lose such a star as Combs for half a season, and such a great catcher as Dickey for the last month of the campaign.

While it may be bromidic to say that pitching is 70 or 80 per cent of a club's efficiency, it nevertheless has been shown to be true on numerous occasions. New York counted on Allen and Van Atta as half of its pitching "big four" in 1934. Neither was able to help, except at brief periods. If they come back in 1935, the Yankees certainly will be more dangerous.

Cleveland has an excellent chance of improving its standing. The Indians are especially strong on the mound and at the bat. Infielder, Louis Berger is said to be one of the greatest infield prospects that has come into the league in many years.

Boston should make a strong bid for the pennant next season, with the chance that Grove, Pipgras and Walberg will be able to take regular turns in the box, and with Joe Cronin, a most capable young manager and an exceptionally fine shortstop, piloting the Red Sox.

ARE DARK HORSES

Philadelphia appears to be the dark horse. Their youthful pitchers demonstrated that, with a season's experience behind them, they are going to keep the Athletics well up in the race from the start. Mack has announced he will use Jimmy Foxx, his most powerful batsman, as a catcher. This move will be watched with great interest.

Rogers Hornsby worked wonders in his first full campaign at St. Louis. He will have a stronger team in 1935, one that should win more games. The same may be said of Washington and Chicago, both of which were riddled by accidents throughout the 1934 battle and never able to present their full strength.

Sylvio Mantha Is Now in Hospital

Detroit, Jan. 7.—Sylvio Mantha, veteran defenceman of Montreal Canadiens, has a badly injured left eye and went into St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, to-day for treatment, Leo Dandurand, manager of the National Hockey League team, stated here, to-day.

CITY DEFEAT SAANICH TEAM

Score 3 to 2 Victory Over First Division Football Leaders on Muddy Field

With both teams wallowing and skidding in a sea of liquid mud, and under a continuous downpour, Victoria City Saturday succeeded in cracking a season-long jinx, defeating Saanich Thistles 3 to 2 in a first division soccer match. The decisive goal came seven minutes from the end of the match, which was a replay of an earlier game ruled void on account of the ineligibility of one of the City players.

In the opening minutes of the game Thistles showed themselves the more active and agile team on the field which would have delighted the heart of any water polo fan, and a long shot from Morgan came near scoring. The City team, however, did not leave the Thistles' goal completely unharrassed.

CITY SCORES FIRST

The first score was marked up by the City when Chalmers, Saanich goalie, fumbled a shot from George Payne, and Youson was left with an open goal, and he made no mistake.

The second goal was an exact copy of the first and proved that while the Saanich team was the stronger on field play its defence was not so sure, and also that the City forward line knew how to use an opportunity when they saw one, for Hodgson shot, Chalmers fumbled, and Golling gently pushed the ball into the goal mouth, giving the City a 2 to 0 lead.

The Thistles' first goal came a few minutes before half-time, and was from a penalty. Stefer, City back, and Baxter, Saanich centre-forward, collided. The referee awarded a penalty shot to Saanich and Baxter scored. The spectators on this and several other occasions loudly criticized the decisions of the referee.

SECOND HALF

The second half began with both teams apparently fairly well matched Rowe, in goal for the City, neatly cleared a strong drive from Price, and George Payne returned the compliment to the Thistles by putting one just over the bar.

The Thistles marked up their second goal twenty-five minutes after half-time when Price shot from the left wing. Halkett, at back, tried to take the ball, although Rowe had signaled for it, fumbled it, and flipped it in himself.

The score remained 2 to 2 until seven minutes before time, when George Payne shot a beautiful long low drive into the corner of the net, bringing the decision in favor of the City team. Leggatt, Thistles back, was completely fooled by the slippery ball, and Chalmers, skidding about in a sea of mud, stood no chance.

Previous to the last goal the Thistles had been on the attack solidly for fifteen minutes. The winning goal was scored in a momentary breakaway.

Angus McKay refereed.

City—Rowe; Stefer, Halkett; Barnwell, Robins, Moore; Hodgson, Golling, Youson, Jack Payne and George Payne.

Thistles — Chalmers; Grove, Leggatt; Williams, Paulos, Spelter; Viggers, Sage, Baxter, Morgan and Price.

Wilmer Allison Is Ranked Number One

Texan Tops United States Tennis Rankings For Year After Brilliant Comeback; Sidney Wood Placed Second; Helen Jacobs Heads Women's List

New York, Jan. 7. — A sensational comeback which carried him almost to the United States singles tennis championship after he had been rejected for the United States Davis Cup team earned Wilmer L. Allison, Austin, Texas, the title of the nation's top-ranking player for 1934.

In announcing the ranking of Allison and twenty-seven other players, the United States Lawn Tennis Association named two professionals among the first ten players for the first time. Fifth and sixth places on the preferred list were accorded Lester Stoefen and George Lott, respectively.

These two, the only point winners on the Davis Cup team to defeat challenge round against England last summer, were ranked because they did not relinquish their amateur status until several weeks after October 15, the closing date for amateur ranking consideration.

FIRST DOUBLES TEAM

Besides receiving grades as singles players, Lott and Stoefen were ranked as the number one doubles team for the second consecutive year. Last year they won the United States indoor and outdoor titles, and also captured the Wimbledon all-England crown.

Helen Hull Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal., who captured the United States singles title for the third straight year, was named at the head of the women's division for the third time.

Sidney B. Wood Jr., frail New Yorker, was moved up a notch to number two, while Frank Shields was dropped from number one to number three. Fourth place went to young Frankie Parker, Berkeley Bell, New York, was moved up from eighteenth to seventeenth, and Clifford Sutter, New York and New Orleans landed in eighth place after ranking fourth last year.

Ninth place was allotted to Donald Budge, the Pacific Coast youngster, and tenth to Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta.

The women's first ten were: Number one, Miss Jacobs; second Mrs. Fabyan; third, Caroline Babcock, Los Angeles; 4, Mrs. Dorothy Andrup, Conn.; fifth, Baroness Maud Levi, New York, sixth, Jane Sharp, Pasadena; seven, Mrs. Marjorie Painter, Dedham, Mass.; eighth, Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, Kansas City; nine, Marjorie L. Sachs, Cambridge, Mass., and ten, Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind.

WOOLDRIDGE GETS RULING

Advised Canadian Cage Body Does Not Approve Action on Amateur Cards

Seeking a ruling from the Canadian Basketball Association as to whether or not Walter Hardwick, Vancouver, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, had the authority to authorize the legislation put through by the British Columbia Basketball Association in regard to cage teams not carrying amateur cards, Gordon Wooldridge, Victoria, who resigned as vice-president of the B.C.A.B.A., wired Dr. S. H. Ketchen, president of the Canadian Association.

The telegram sent by Wooldridge to Keshen follows: "On account of B.C. Basketball Association having adopted following resolution, 'That only winning teams in each division men and women in each district, excluding senior A, be required to hold amateur cards in order to enter B.C. play-offs,' N. B. Porter, president, and G. Wooldridge, vice-president, have resigned. Do you approve and endorse the above unconstitutional legislation?"

The answer from Dr. Keshen follows:

"We urge all players to carry cards. Please withhold resignations pending constitutional revision, when a definite policy will be laid down on this point and possible A.A.U. alliance changes are made. Hardwick has been advised to take up this matter with Porter. Would you communicate with him too."

Durgin scored after fifteen minutes and McDonald on a header just before the interval. No Comeback, Says Great Bobby Jones

New Orleans, Jan. 7. — Will Bobby Jones ever make a comeback in golf? The Robert Tyre Jones Jr., who put golf among the headline sports by winning every major championship there was to win, says "no."

Still, the "grand slam" winner, who copped both United States and British amateur and open championships in one season, thereby setting a precedent which probably will never be equalled, plays the same great brand of golf he used to in the old days.

BIG SEVEN OF MAJOR HOCKEY

Larry Aurie, Detroit, scored two goals and one assist over the week-end and jumped from last place in the National Hockey League's big seven into a tie for third place with his teammate, Cooney Weiland, who also scored an assist in Detroit's game with Canadiens. Only other big seven player to gain points was second-place Charlie Conacher, who scored a goal.

DETROIT IN HOCKEY GAIN

Score Double Win to Move Close to Leaders in International League

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 7.—Detroit Olympics picked up four points in week-end games with Syracuse and Buffalo of the International Hockey League, and to-day were within two games of the pace-setting London Tecumseths.

The Tecs had an opportunity to consolidate their lead by beating the Bulldogs in Windsor Saturday night, but penalties to the Londoners presented scoring opportunities too great for the Bulldogs to miss. Tecs came out on the short end of a 6 to 3 score.

In Cleveland Syracuse Stars Saturday night lost, 3 to 1, to the Falcons and then played host to Detroit Olympics yesterday and absorbed their second beating of the week-end, 2 to 1. Detroit gained the other two points Saturday night in Fort Erie, where they defeated Mickey Roach's Buffalo herd, 3 to 2.

Little Ken Doraty, the Regina mite, playing on loan to Syracuse from Toronto Maple Leafs, saved Stars from a shutout Saturday. The Falcons were leading, 2 to 0, when Doraty flipped in a rebound in the third period to score.

MANY CAUSES POSSIBLE IF YOU CAN NOT SWALLOW

Difficulty With Food May Range From Mere Scratch in Throat to Some Serious Growth or Nervous Disturbance

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Probably you have come across a person who suddenly found he could not swallow his food. It is a distressing experience.

The trouble may be more serious than merely that of hurting.

Difficulty in swallowing may happen to people of any age and may vary from inability to take in large mouthfuls of food to trouble in swallowing even liquids.

Furthermore, it may be due to a number of causes. Sometimes it is simply that the throat has been scratched by a fish bone or a small meat bone, so that swallowing is difficult until healing occurs.

Sometimes a small portion of a bone will become lodged in the wall of the throat or of the esophagus, the tube that leads from the throat to the stomach. It may be difficult to detect the presence of such a splinter of bone even with the X-ray.

A clever British doctor worked out a way of finding out about such particles of bone. He had the patient swallow small pieces of cotton soaked in barium emulsion. The little fibres got caught on the edges of the splinter of bone, and then, when the X-ray picture is taken, the trouble can be located.

Ingenious instruments have been developed which permit the doctor to fish such splinters out of the place in which they may be lodged.

There are other cases in which trouble with swallowing occur because of disturbances of the nervous system. For instance, in lockjaw it is not possible to open the mouth because the infection in the nervous system holds the jaws together. The mouth may be so dry from lack of saliva, that swallowing is difficult because the food is not moistened.

There may be paralysis of the palate such as occurs in diphtheria, or there may be a cleft palate — failure of the bones of the head to grow together properly at birth. There may be severe swelling of the tonsils, which will cause swallowing to become difficult, and occasionally in older people tumors develop which obstruct the swallowing passages.

Sometimes little pouches are formed off the esophagus. When food is taken, it gets into these pouches with pressure, and there is pain and resulting difficulty in eating.

Obviously, it is necessary to investigate every one and to take care of the condition that is found, realizing at the same time that difficulty in swallowing is just a symptom rather than a disease itself.

Report Nazis Shot At Hitler

Rumor German Dictator's Life Attempted By Two Storm Troopers Denied

Berlin, Jan. 7.—Unconfirmed reports from unrelated quarters in Munich and Berlin yesterday evening said two storm troopers attempted to shoot Adolf Hitler, in the Chancellery on the night of December 31, not harming Hitler, but wounding a chauffeur.

Another version, likewise unconfirmed, said the chauffeur was killed.

Both reports were promptly denied in responsible circles.

It was noted Chancellor Hitler has a new driver for his automobile, however.

It was said the reputed attempt against Hitler's life was the reason for the mysterious meeting at the Opera House in Berlin last Thursday.

FRANCO-ITALIAN AGREEMENTS ARE SIGNED TO-DAY

The fact that a full accord had been reached in conversations lasting some seven and a half hours was announced by M. Laval yesterday evening.

Observers expressed the opinion that a return to Geneva by Germany may be a possible result of the far-reaching Franco-Italian agreement reached by the two statesmen.

SUBJECTS OF AGREEMENTS

An agreement involving German rearmament, in addition to the other agreements concluded by France and Italy during the negotiations of the last three days, was signed.

The agreement will hold German rearmament illegal until a special agreement on this question is reached between Germany and the great powers, it was believed.

Announcement that the agreements would be signed to-day was made after the surprise announcement of complete mutual understanding between the French Foreign Minister and Il Duce, following their conversations late yesterday evening.

It was unofficially said the four separate diplomatic instruments signed were:

1. An official statement declaring that French and Italian views harmonize on the principal political problems in Europe, and on Franco-Italian relations in Africa.

AUSTRIAN INDEPENDENCE

2. An understanding whereby France and Italy pledge themselves to act together in any aggression and against Austria's independence, inviting the neighbor and successor states of Austria to join with them in consultation on such action, and also asking these interested powers mutually to respect one another's frontiers and refrain from interference in the other's domestic affairs.

COLONIAL QUESTIONS

3. Three projects for Franco-Italian colonial conventions—one providing that privileges accorded to Italian residents of Tunisia cease in 1936; and two others fixing French cessions of territory to Italy in the south of Libya and Somaliland.

4. A declaration by the French and Italian governments holding that Germany's re-armament is illegal until a special agreement on this question is reached by the Reich with the great powers.

The two chief differences on colonial questions were the length of time Italian residents in Tunisia may continue to enjoy their present privileges, and the amount of territory in French Somaliland that France is to cede to Italy. Laval and Mussolini met to-day to settle these points.

WELCOMED IN FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 7.—The strain here over Franco-Italian relations is eased, and a new friendship, guaranteed peace, now has been inaugurated, the French press agreed to-day.

Le Journal, semi-official newspaper, said: "We can express our joy in seeing normal relations at last re-established between the two nations, whose disharmony is the best guarantee of peace."

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 7.—Industrial stocks were slow in starting to-day on the Toronto exchange, but a gradual pick-up brought action for the last hour. Gains had a good margin over losses at the close.

U.S. buying of the distillery shares gave that group a strong close. Walkers holding a net gain of more than a point.

Dominion Stores sold above the twelve mark. Canners A gained one and Consolidated Bakeries added a fraction. Utilities were strong. The B.C. Power issues, Bell Telephone, Montreal Power and Union Gas were on the up side at the close. C.P.R. lost ¼.

BOND MARKET TREND HIGHER

Associated Press

New York, Jan. 7.—The imminence of President Roosevelt's budget message to the United States Congress appeared to slow trading in bonds during the forenoon.

Most of the federals were heavy, and some showed large transactions.

A substantial number of corporate bonds, including rails, advanced fractions to around a point. Several of the German issues were higher under the lead of the Dawes 7s which improved 1½ points at 42.

Fractional Upturns For Winnipeg Wheat

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—Strength in outside markets induced fractional upturns on the Winnipeg grain exchange to-day but failed to shake off the lethargy that has prevailed over the market for more than two weeks.

Wheat prices closed ¼ to ⅛ cent higher, May at 84 and July 84½ cents.

Pending a revival of foreign demand for Canadian wheat, traders apparently were content to hold aloof. Offerings and purchases were equally light.

Moderate buying by Canadian mills was the only feature to the cash grain section and trading there, and in coarse grains, was dull.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress to-day received a bullish interpretation among grain traders, and tended materially at times to lift prices. Tending further to advance wheat prices were 2,442,000 bushels decrease to-day in the United States wheat visible supply total.

Wheat closed firm at the same as Saturday's finish to 1⅛ higher, May 101⅝-¾, corn ⅝-1⅛ up, May 91⅛-⅝, oats ¼-⅜ advanced and provisions showed 5 to 20 cents gain.

Tarzan of the Apes

When the tribe saw Korchak's rage had ceased, they stole slowly down from their shaded retreats. They had paused an hour or so pursuing again their various occupations when Korchak called them together and with a word of command to them to follow him, set off toward the sea.

And all the way Kala carried her little dead baby hugged closely to her breast. Shortly after noon they reached a ridge overlooking the beach where below them lay the tiny village which was Korchak's goal. He had made up his mind to explore the interior of that mysterious den.

He wanted very much to see that little black stick that had often reared out its terrible message of death to some member of the tribe. To-day there was no man about. Slowly, cautiously and unknowingly, they crept through the jungle toward the little cabin.

Korchak himself stuck slowly to the very door and peered within. Behind him were two males and then Kala stooping her dead babe. They saw the strange white ape lying half across a table and a figure covered by a sailcloth. A plaintive wailing came from a tiny cradle.

Korchak entered. Gorgonko rose with a sudden start and faced them. The sight that met his eyes must have frozen him with horror! His revolvers and rifle hung on the far wall. Within the door stood three great hairy apes behind them crowded many more—HOW MANY? HE NEVER KNEW!

The Gumps

In Virtue "Meaningless Nothing"? Dorothy Dix Dope Sophistry of Modern Writer

A PROMINENT and popular writer, discussing the problem of the boys and girls who are in love and who cannot marry because they have neither money nor jobs, says: "It should be obvious that the only way of getting around such a condition—shocking as it may sound—is for them to live together without being married.' I can hear some of you gasp. It is a gasping subject. But just the same there it is, plain, blunt and inescapable. No use to cover it up with platitudes, no use to preach, no use to cry.

"We bandy meaningless nothings when we talk about chastity, self-control and hope to poor young people. Worn out, valueless banners of virtue, which would set a stigma upon the natural and inevitable and which are now held aloft by an inept society, flap dismally in the tornado which sweeps across the world."

I believe this to be a false and a misleading propaganda, and that nothing is calculated to do more harm than to teach the young that they have a right to break the laws of God and man if these laws stand between them and their desires. Nobody will deny that it is a sad and terrible thing that boys and girls cannot marry at the time of life when Nature intended them to mate, but they buy a little present happiness, a few thrills at too high a price when they pay for them with their virtue and their self-respect and the respect of their fellow creatures.

I know, no one knows better, because I get thousands upon thousands of letters from distraught young creatures, torn between love and the lack of the price of a wedding ring, who are taking the easiest way out and going to live together without benefit of clergy. This lowering of the morale of young people has been the greatest tragedy of the depression. Breaking banks have not wrought the havoc that the breaking down of ethical standards has, for many a boy and girl who will recoup their financial losses in the future have suffered a spiritual bankruptcy from which they will never recover.

In the turmoil that we have been through, when we have seen so many of our traditions and opinions and beliefs scrapped, it is not strange that youth has lost its hold upon the eternal verities and does not know what to cling to, and because it cannot live according to the old rules it feels that it has a right to live without any rules at all.

But this cannot be. There are certain things that are right or wrong and our attitude toward them does not affect them. The commandment, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," was not thundered from Mount Sinai for boom nor for depression. It is a law unto us for all time and we have no more right to break it when we are poor than when we are rich.

This doctrine that teaches that morality is a matter of money and that if you haven't enough to marry on openly and honorably and in the sight of all men you are justified in setting up a hole-and-corner illicit relationship is demoralizing enough to men, but it is fatal to girls because it scraps away their every protection and leaves their fates to the fickle fancies of the youths to whom they have given themselves.

What a broken reed this is to lean upon we see daily attested. Innumerable husbands are unfaithful. Few husbands remain ardent lovers. Most men weary of domesticity and would break their matrimonial chains were they not held by the powers of law and society and by the potent hands of little children. So are the wife and her children kept safe in many a case.

But the girl who has entered into an illicit relationship with a man has no hold whatever upon him except her ability to keep him charmed and in love with her, and in time every woman exhausts her little bag of tricks and loses her conjure wand. There is then nothing to keep the beard lover from being on his way to fresher fields and pastures greener. He has no alimony to pay, and society welcomes him back and thinks he is wise in having broken up his little affair.

But nobody slays the fatted calf for the girl who has bought her romance with her good name. She isn't even asked to sit at the table with those who are enjoying their breaded veal chops. She has put herself outside the pale, and no matter what sophistries she uses to herself, no matter how she brazens it out, in her secret heart she goes humbled and ashamed because she has been false to her ideals and lowered the standards of her sex.

Of course, the girl who enters into a liaison with a man always believes that he will marry her, but this seldom happens. Free love means what it says, so why should he pay for what he gets for nothing? Besides, a liaison is even more disillusioning than marriage. A couple see each other at their worst. They are not at ease with their consciences. They know that people look at them askance. They cannot boast and glory in their love. And so most of these affairs under the rose break up in a year or two. It is not the loveliest that endures, but the honest house that is founded on the rocks of decency.

We teach children that the very foundation stone of character is self-control and that the measure of our strength is our ability to deny ourselves what we want at the minute and work for it and wait for it until we can get it honestly. This applies to matters of sex just as much as it does to anything else. Illicit love never carries any blessing with it.

Uncle Wiggily's Snow House

(By Howard R. Garis)

One day, after much snow had fallen in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains where Uncle Wiggily lived, the rabbit gentleman hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow to go adventuring. He had on his paws a pair of snowshoes made from his tennis rackets. These broad snowshoes kept Mr. Longears from sinking too deep in the snowdrifts.

"I can hop along fast this way, said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his nose as he ran fast to keep it warm, for the weather was cold. "I ought soon to have an adventure." He hopped along and along and pretty soon, back of a bush, the rabbit gentleman heard voices talking.

"Let's make a snow house," said one voice.

"That'll be fun," said the other voice.

Looking over the top of the bush, Uncle Wiggily saw two of his little rabbit boys named Buster and Custer. They didn't wear snowshoes for they didn't care how deep they went in the drifts. Each one had a small shovel and they had been playing in the snow a long time, for their noses were as red as strawberries in summer. There had only been one session of school that day. That's why Buster and Custer were out so early.

"No," said Custer. "But I guess it's easy.

STAYS TO WATCH

"I'll stay here and watch what they do without letting them see me," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I don't believe they know how to make a snow house but when they try and can't do it I'll show them how."

"The first thing to do when you make a snow house," said Buster to his brother, "is to have four walls. Then you put the roof on and there's your house and you sleep in it."

"That sound easy," said Custer.

"It is easy," said Buster.

So the little rabbit boys, with their shovels, piled a lot of snow together in a long, nothing four walls in the shape of a square like a box. They covered the snow out from inside the square and piled it on the four walls until they were as high as their heads.

"Wait, we haven't got the roof on yet," said Buster. "As soon as we put the roof on and cut some windows and a door it will be a snow house."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I'll see how they put the roof on their snow house."

Well, Buster and Custer tried but their roof didn't work. They kept on piling more snow on the side walls and shoving the snow in towards the middle, but after a short time the roof always fell down and they would have to start over again.

DADDY HELPS OUT

"Oh, dear!" said Custer. "I wish daddy would come out and show us how to make a snow house." Buster said the same and pretty soon Daddy hopped out from behind the bush, much to the delight of the house boys.

"You never can make a roof to your snow house the way you are going at it," said Mr. Longears. "You need some cross sticks, beams or rafters to hold the snow up. Now we can't easily get poles for beams as I'll show you how. Rabbit boys build a snow house. First make a big pile of snow as you make piles of leaves in the fall for a bonfire."

Soon, with their father's help, Buster and Custer had a big round heap of snow. Then a hole was made near the ground. The snow was dug out from inside the pile making a hollow place. And because the roof was rounded like a dome of stick, it did not fall in.

"Only don't dig out too much snow, making the walls and roof too thin," the bunny daddy told his boys. Soon they had a cute little snow house which looked like half a big, white apple. Holes were cut for windows and Buster and Custer had lots of fun playing. The roof didn't fall down on their heads, either. And if the radio will go for a walk around the block with the snow man, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily driving a nail.

HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1935

According to astrology this is a day of conflicting planetary aspects. It is a time for mental activity. Aspects may be difficult to reach. In the early morning there may be an urge toward adventure in business or professional effort, but later there will be a return of caution. It is well not to act hastily.

While this configuration prevails many rumors may disturb the public mind. Persons who exercise authority in high place or in modest positions will be subject to suspicion and misjudgment.

There is a good sign for aviation. Much progress may be made in this profession. To-day may be risky for flying and it is well to watch the weather forecasts.

Women are under a fairly favorable rule to-day. They have the possibility of success in ambitious enterprises. Competition and jealousy among wage-earners are strongest.

This is a lucky wedding day. Those who plan fresh unions this configuration may find fortune coming, but they have the promise of real happiness.

The evening is not auspicious for any efforts toward winning the favor of persons who exercise power of any sort. Associations with the wealthy will not be profitable for those who seek to climb above their present place in business or politics.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of smooth days. Success apparently will be within the reach of many.

Children born on this day may be fun-loving and intuitive. Subjects of this sign of Capricorn usually combine imagination and practical ideas in the most successful manner.

Lazarus, Alice-Tuliana, painter, was born on this day, 1858. Others who have celebrated it are Wilkins Micawber, novelist, 1844, and Mahatma Gandhi, early statesman, 1869.

Boiler Job To Start On Estevan Shortly

V.M.D. Will Do $50,000 Job to Government Lighthouse Tender During Next Six Weeks; Ship Repairing Business Here Is Good

Another $50,000 shipping job will be started in Victoria at the end of this week when the Dominion Government lighthouse tender Estevan ties up for installation of her two main boilers. The work will take about six weeks and will be done by the Victoria Machinery Depot.

The Estevan is now on the west coast of Vancouver Island. This morning she was at Carmanah Lighthouse. She will return to Victoria in a few days and will go to the Victoria Machinery Depot, in the upper inner harbor, at the end of this week. It will be late in February before she is released.

BOILERS HERE

The new boilers have already arrived in Victoria. They were made at the plant of Babcock, Wilcox, Goldie and McCulloch, at Galt, Ontario, and were sent to Victoria by rail. Other work will also be done on the Estevan before she is released. The installation of the new boilers is the biggest job done on the Estevan since she was launched. It is also one of the biggest undertakings handled by the Victoria Machinery Depot in some years and will give good jobs to a number of men during the next six weeks.

The award of the repair job on the Bentinckers to Yarrow's Limited last week means that $100,000 worth of repairs and overhaul will be going on in Victoria at the same time during the next few weeks. The Bentinckers is now in Esquimalt harbor and will be released only a few weeks before the Estevan is ready.

FRENCH WARSHIP IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Jan. 7.—The French naval training cruiser Jeanne d'Arc is in port on an official visit and thousands of visitors viewed the vessel yesterday.

The ship has a crew of 650 men and officers and carries 145 cadets or midshipmen, under command of Captain Yves Douval. She is a 6,000-ton cruiser, built at St. Nazaire and launched in 1930, with engines of 32,500 horsepower. Her speed is in excess of twenty-seven knots and her armament consists of eight 155-millimetre guns, two quick-fires and two torpedo tubes. Two flying boats, each heavily armed, form part of her equipment. The officers and sailors are being widely entertained during the visit of their ship to this port. The French consul-general and Mme. Paul Suner gave a large reception this afternoon. Other prominent members of the French colony will also entertain at various functions. The men of the ship are being entertained at a number of smokers and sports events.

Before the Jeanne d'Arc leaves port on Thursday, Capt. Douval and his senior officers will return the hospitality extended to them at a social function aboard their ship. The vessel came here from Seattle, where she spent last week.

Disabled Ship To Come Here

Seattle, Jan. 7. — The British freighter Langleecrag, which lost its propeller Thursday night northeast of Japan in stormy weather and called for aid, has been taken in tow by its sister ship, the Langlebrook, the consignees of the vessel reported to-day.

A line was placed on the ship, a radio message said, and the Langlebrook started to tow the vessel across the Pacific to Victoria, B.C., the destination of both vessels, some 2,500 miles away.

War On Sharks Being Planned

British Warships, Aided By Others, Will Wage War on Timor Sea Monsters

San Francisco, Jan. 7.—Naval and aerial forces of three nations will combine in a gigantic warfare against sharks in the Timor Sea, according to a report received here by the Dollar Steamship Lines, from the company's office at Hongkong.

"Naval vessels stationed at Hongkong, including H.M.S. Hermes, British airplane carrier, and destroyers of the First Destroyer Flotilla, are now en route to the sea," says the report. "Shortly Netherlands, Portuguese and other British warships will converge on the scene in a joint effort to destroy or drive away permanently the countless sharks that infest this breeding ground.

"Aerial bomb and marine torpedoes, as well as depth bombs, will be employed against these tigers of the deep.

"Timor Sea is a tropical island-studded expanse of water stretching between the northern tip of Australia and the Celebes. It is the breeding ground of hundreds of thousands of sharks that are forming an ever increasing menace to navigation in small boats, life and property.

"Plans for the 'war' were formulated after several contestants in the London-to-Melbourne air race had reported that flying low over the Timor Sea was nothing short of a nightmare.' One of these aviators was quoted as saying, 'It was anything but pleasant to look down and see hundreds of these hungry looking sharks with huge gaping jaws ready to snap us up if we were forced down.'"

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where double zeros in the tables, the tide rises or falls continuously during three of the usual tidal periods.

South African Supplement

Port of London Publication Contains Special Supplement

A number of interesting stories and finely engraved photographs grace the December issue of The P.L.A. Monthly, the publication of the port of London, which has just been received in Victoria. This issue is a South Africa supplement and tells in descriptive detail the story of the visit of several officials of the port to South Africa last summer.

The frontispiece of the magazine shows the liner Windsor Castle of the Union-Castle Steamship Company, in Table Bay, with the famous Table Mountain in the background. At the foot of this mountain lies Capetown, which is by far the oldest port of South Africa, the bay having been known to the early Portuguese and Dutch navigators.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHS

Among the photographs shown in the South African supplement are those of the Union Buildings at Pretoria, Transvaal, which were designed by Sir Herbert Baker; the main street of Johannesburg, which stands at a height of nearly 6,000 feet above sea level and has a population of 400,000 people and is the centre of the Rand gold-mining industry; the Victoria Falls of the Zambesi River, which are 6,000 feet from bank to bank and far surpass the falls of Niagara in size and magnificence; Port Elizabeth and the Chaka Malan Quay, now under construction; the port of Durban, which is the leading port in the Union of South Africa; the Dick King statue at Durban, King being the hero of an epic ride on horseback when he traveled 600 miles to seek succor for the British garrison besieged at Durban, and the great docks in Table Bay.

Besides the South African section the magazine contains the usual informative articles and pictures about London's great port on the Thames.

Railway Earnings In Canada Better

For First Ten Months of 1934 Earnings of Railroads in Canada Showed Increase Over Preceding Year

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—Earnings of Canadian Railways in October last amounted to $20,150,822, an increase of $1,011,000 or 7 per cent, compared with the corresponding month in 1933, says a report issued yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics.

Operating expenses were heavier by $1,770,040, or 9 per cent, and net operating revenues increased from $7,556,049 to $7,697,270. Less than half the increase in operating expenses was for operating pay roll which increased by $352,464, or from $12,146,572 in 1933 to $12,499,036. The number of employees rose from 114,820 to 120,577 but was 3,830 less than in September, 1934.

For the two months, ended October, gross revenue amounted to $297,806,-842 in 1934 and $290,082,742 in 1933 and the operating income was $27,-460,277 in 1934 and $16,797,778 in 1933.

Canadian National Railways showed gross revenues of $13,020,352 as against $12,003,856 for last year. Operating expenses increased by only $003,026 thus increasing net operating revenues by $322,567 and the operating income by $238,510, or from $2,162,-326 in 1933 to $2,300,837.

The Grand Trunk Western showed a substantial improvement over October, 1933, results, the operating income being up by $116,000, but the other lines in the United States showed decreases and the total system operating income of $2,302,056 was only $209,107 above last year's.

For the ten months the Canadian lines showed an operating income of $4,280,167, as against a debit of $1,-116,149 in 1933, and the United States lines reduced their debit from $1,005,-768 in 1933 to $200,091, making the system operating income of $4,180,-076, an improvement of $5,296,015.

Canadian Pacific Railway gross revenues increased by $705,000, or from $11,908,004 in October, 1933, to $12,703,852. Operating expenses increased by $720,001 and the operating income of $4,100,070 was $42,232 above last year's.

For the first ten months gross earnings increased from $99,832,500 in 1933 to $103,806,008 and the operating income from $14,090,898 to $17,-770,706.

Victoria Men to Form Branch of Seafarers' Industrial Union; Committee Named

Seamen of Victoria met yesterday in the Longshoremen's Hall on Erie Street, James Bay, and formed another branch of the Seafarers' Industrial Union, which has its headquarters in Toronto.

A decision to set up a Victoria branch was made.

An executive committee of five was elected, pro tem, to carry out the preliminary organization. Those elected were: L. Clarke, chairman; J. P. Veitch, secretary, and George Jones, W. Hitch and F. Abrahams, organizers. All interested in the formation of the branch are asked to communicate with these delegates. The secretary's phone number is G 1838.

A brief outline of the aims and objects of the main organization was given by P. Driscoll, secretary of the Vancouver local. Everyone serving on ships, from the master to the mess boys, is eligible for membership. All races will be admitted.

The objects of the organization, it was explained at the meeting, are better wages for all concerned; better working hours, unification of seamen, and better safety rules.

Minor Clashes As Saar Vote Begins

as a brilliant victory for the plebiscite commission, which permitted the rival factions to demonstrate together without serious clashes.

NO POSTPONEMENT

For this reason the possibility of a postponement of the vote, considered Saturday because of fears of Sunday disorders, presumably was abandoned.

Max Braun, fiery anti-Nazi leader, created a mild sensation as the first ballots were marked, by claiming that Reichsführer Hitler had offered to "throw the election" to avoid the possibility of the League dividing the territory should the "status quo" faction secure a large minority vote.

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 7.—Nearly 500,000 Saarlanders got wet feet yesterday in an orgy of demonstrations, the most comprehensive yet staged, for and against return of the Saar to Germany. No disorders were reported.

What looked like 200,000 snow-covered umbrellas crowned a hilltop in one demonstration by Nazi adherents.

A day of damp marching, passionate singing and bitter oratory convinced both sides they will register a tremendous vote, but left neutral observers considerably in the dark as to just how the ballot will be divided in the plebiscite set for one week from yesterday.

TROOPS ALERT

The Nazis announced more than 250,000 had attended their mass meetings, and a spokesman for elements favoring a status quo vote said 120,000 had participated in an Anti-Hitler gathering, but neither figure entirely satisfied neutrals.

The international troops were on the alert, and, although confined to barracks, were ready for emergency duty in case of serious rioting. No clashes were reported in the daytime, but early yesterday evening the streets of Saarbruecken still resounded to the strains of the Internationale, sung by departing status quo marchers, many of them carrying Communist flags.

Weather greatly hampered the Nazi meeting by drenching it with stinging, wet snow, while a few hours later Nazi municipal officials of Saarbruecken temporarily crippled a status quo rally by depriving it of electric current and loud speakers.

OATH TAKEN

The most impressive moment at the status quo gathering was an oath-taking ceremony by the Anti-Hitlerites in the gathering dusk before an altar fire. Raising clenched fists, they swore to return to Germany later, but never as long as it was ruled by Hitler.

The Plebiscite Commission yesterday made public a letter protesting the action of two Catholic bishops who on January 5 issued a pastoral interpreted as advising Saarlanders Catholics to vote to return to Germany.

The fact the demonstrations yesterday were orderly was taken to-day as minimizing the possibility of a postponement of the plebiscite. The governing commission Saturday seriously discussed this possibility, fearing disorders yesterday would prompt trouble next Sunday.

Bogus Cheques Are Passed On Prairies

bank manager to whom he talked also had just cashed some. An examination disclosed the cheques were counterfeit and police were called.

Police said Makator was taken into custody when he tendered one of the bogus cheques to a jewelry store in payment for a diamond ring. Fifty similar cheques were found in his possession, police said.

MAN HELD AT REGINA

Regina, Jan. 7.—Thought to have laid plans to pull off operations simultaneously in cities of western Canada, a big counterfeiting ring is believed to have been uncovered with the arrest of two men in Winnipeg and Regina.

In Regina a man giving his name as Ralph Baker was taken by city police while he was allegedly attempting to cash a bogus fifty dollar travelers' cheque in a departmental store.

A check into Saturday showed none of the counterfeit forms had been passed off on Regina stores, the post office or other business places.

FOUND IN STORE

At a department store Detective Charles Millar arrested Baker while he was allegedly attempting to cash a counterfeit fifty dollar travelers' cheque on the Bank of Toronto. He said he was coming to Regina to get married and that he was buying a coat for the occasion.

Baker, police found, had five cheques for $100 and three for fifty dollars, all enclosed in a regular imitation leather container.

Supposedly issued at Galt, Ontario, the cheques are described by police as the smartest counterfeits they have seen in a long time.

GIVEN REMAND

Winnipeg, Jan. 7 (Canadian Press—Mark Makator, Ukrainian from Saskatoon, held in connection with the activities of a gang of counterfeiters which netted $4,000 in passing worthless travelers' cheques here over the week-end, appeared in police court to-day and was remanded until Jan. 14.

WATCH IN VANCOUVER

Winnipeg, Jan. 7.—Belief that a master mind was at the head of a gigantic criminal band flooding western Canada with spurious travelers' cheques was expressed today as police intensified their efforts to capture the counterfeiters.

Chief Constable George Smith of Winnipeg expected cheques would turn up at Vancouver as the gang apparently was scattered over the four western provinces. Winnipeg, Regina and Saskatoon have already been victimized.
